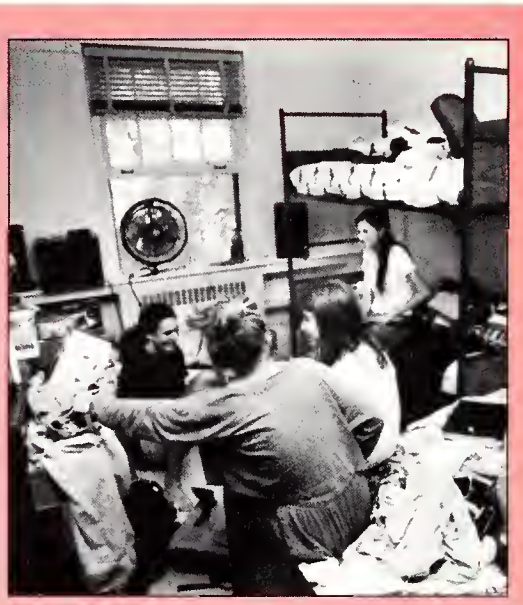
Campus Comes Alive Again



Roommates just have to talk before finishing the unpacking job.

Students returned to MWC in late August with the usual excitement that "moving in" days inspire.

Adding interest to this academic year is the relocation to many areas around campus of classes usually held in the Fine Arts Complex, which is undergoing extensive renovation.

ALUMNI

BY TARA C. CORRIGALL '82

Linda Howell Gray '69 is this year's recipient of the Distinguished Alumnus Award for her dedication to public service and education around the world.

After graduating from Mary Washington College with a B.A. in French, Lyn earned a master's degree in Russian from Georgetown University. She then joined the Peace Corps as a volunteer teacher, served for several years in Liberia, and subsequently was a Peace Corps trainer there. In 1977 she returned to Georgetown as the director of International Student Activities, creating and managing programs to orient international students, and to encourage U.S. student participation in intercultural programs. Six years later, she became Georgetown's assistant director of the Center for Immigration Policy and Refugee Assistance. In late 1983, she went to Zaire as the Peace Corps' associate director for programming and training. After several years she was named country director of the Peace Corps in Niger, West Africa, supervising an international staff of 60 people and directing 125-140 Peace Corps volunteers. From 1990-91, Lyn served as executive director of the National Council of Returned Peace Corps Volunteers, managing all aspects of a non-profit membership organization of 7,000 members and 106 affiliate groups.

At the present time, she works for the Environmental Protection Agency as a total quality management adviser. Married to Jim, her college sweetheart (a Randolph-Macon graduate), they will move with their son, Rafa, to Blacksburg, Va., this fall.

Lyn's efforts to aid the poor and feed the hungry make her a truly extraordinary individual and a role model for recent and future graduates. Lyn's family and friends joined her at the banquet, where she impressed upon us the confidence her liberal arts education gave her as she worked to educate and assist those in less-developed countries. We feel honored to count her among our MWC alumni and wish her well in the future.

Denise Mattingly Luck '74 received the 1993 Mary Washington College Alumni Association Service Award. Denise was instrumental in reviving the Fredericksburg chapter several years ago and currently serves as chapter president. She also has been on the Alumni Association Board of Directors for six years, worked on Homecoming/Reunion Weekends and served as president-elect and president. Recently she played an integral role in the Alumni Association assessment process. In 1991-92, she chaired the College's Distinguished Visitor in Residence Committee. In fact, we are hard-pressed to find any alumni role or function which Denise has not been a part of through the years. Over and over, she has made a difference when and where it really counted. Always the peacemaker and bridgebuilder, she continues to be a vital part of the Association. We can now also include her two sons, Jason and Andrew, as reunion volunteers. Denise sets a wonderful example to all alumni with her on-going dedication to Mary Washington College. Knowing Denise, I am sure this is only the beginning, and we are sure to hear from her often in the years ahead.

Tara C. Corrigall '82 is chair of alumni awards, MWC Alumni Association Board of Directors. An account executive for PaineWebber Inc. in Washington, D.C., Tara resides in Arlington, Va.

REUNION '93 DIARY

BY SCOTT H. HARRIS '83

When I was asked to write this article, I had no idea how difficult it would be. How can you summarize in 500 words a weekend filled with engaging activities, joyous reunions with classmates, and countless shared memories? The Reunion Diary that follows is such an attempt — observations of some of the things that made Reunion Weekend 1993 a memorable experience.

Friday, June 4: Rain doesn't seem to stop alumni from getting an early start on the weekend. Impressive range of classes for this reunion, from the "youngsters" of 1988 all the way back to Louise Milbourne Clarke, Class of 1918! Reunion College classes on wine-tasting and the Leidecker exhibit well-attended. College looks great, as usual, even when soggy....

Friday Evening: Weather transforms Brompton Welcome into Huddled-Under-Tent-In-Ball Circle Welcome. No matter — everyone having a good time. Great to see so many faculty, staff, volunteers and alumni. Southwestern buffet dinner was a big hit — I wish Seacobeck had done ribs that tasted that good when I was a student! The sight of so many umbrellas parked outside the door recalls many rainy-day meals.

Friday Night Alumni Board Meeting: Board evicted from parlor in Ball Hall by Class of 1948's spontaneous party. Outgoing Vice President for Reunion Weekend, Linda Gattis '69, had quite a "fall."

Mabel Royal '83 catches up on classmates' lives with the help of old yearbooks.

Scrapbooks and laughter seem to go together, as this photo shows.

The Class of 1968 wants its photo to be taken, but can't stop talking!

Louise Milbourne Clarke '18 has seen many changes since her graduation 75 years ago.

A short time-out from the festivities is sometimes needed.

The schedule of events is full and varied.

Cindy Drury Clark '78 goes through the buffet line in Monroe Square.

The informal get-togethers are as important as the scheduled parties.

Classmates are together again, and everyone seems to talk at once.

Friends are spotted in the distance.

Saturday Morning, June 5: The sun now smiles on MWC! Registration area busy. Lots of mini-reunions as classmates spot one another. Most of my '83 pals have toddlers (as I do). Bags under our eyes from sleepless nights are now caused by children instead of keg parties.

Reunion College sessions have archaeology and natural history themes — "Recent Excavations in Troy," "Sights and Sounds of the Galapagos." Maybe next year we can do a dig in a sophomore dorm room during exam week — pizza boxes, blue books, drink cans, No-Doz tablets. Campus tours and class on College building program show off the changes. Amazing how familiar everything remains, even with new buildings, Campus Walk, Monroe fountain.

Saturday Afternoon: Picnic time! Pretty hot by now, but nobody seems to mind. Class pictures on Monroe steps were a study in controlled pandemonium, but everyone got snapped on schedule.

Class parties help everyone catch up on old times and new times. The '83 bunch invaded Russell — all we needed was dorm mom Val Lazzari to watch over us.

Saturday Evening: Receptions, receptions — MWC Foundation, Historic Preservation, alumni — nice stopovers on the way to the banquet at Woodard Campus Center's Great Hall (what is that stuff on the ceiling, anyway?). Well-deserved awards to Linda Howell Gray '69 (Distinguished Alumnus) and Denise Mattingly Luck '74 (Alumni Service). College Executive Vice President A. Ray Merchent and retired art professor Cornelia Oliver made honorary alumni. Slide show brought back memories for all classes.

The Foundation Reception outside the Ridderhof Martin Gallery features ice sculptures, a horn of plenty, and good conversation.

Toddlers join their parents in exploring the fountain in Monroe Square.

It's another perfect day for seeing the changes on campus.

Saturday Night: Last Hurrah, Eagle's Nest — time to let our hair down and dance, all except me, with a broken toe — which one gets when one kicks the side of the motel pool a bit too hard. Most of the Alumni Board can-cans to Village People's "YMCA." Why not?

Sunday, June 6: Amphitheater church service was lovely — a perfect setting. Departure time for those alumni who relived the dorm experience Saturday night. Now comes the clean-up, debriefing, and plans for Reunion Weekend 1994!

Scott H. Harris '83 is curator at the Manassas Museum in Manassas, Va. He is married to Diann Davis Harris '81, and has one son.

The Academic Year Begins

The faculty enters George Washington Hall.

New students sign the Honor Pledge.

It is now the custom to mark the beginning of the academic year with a formal Honor Convocation, held in Dodd Auditorium the Sunday evening before classes begin.

The Honorable Margaret Mary McVeigh '74, Judge, Superior Court of New Jersey, explained the importance of the Honor System. "I learned lessons about life and truths about myself that have sustained me through law school, the practice of law, and the establishment of my own family. The code of honor and the commitment to community that exists at MWC is remarkable. The reverence for integrity that is built into our traditions will prepare you to meet the challenges and decisions you must face for your own life and all those you touch....

"Just as I make decisions about other people's lives, you must now be responsible for the direction and decisions of your own life. Just as laws provide the structure for society, the Honor System provides structure for this community. People sustain the law, and you sustain the Honor System. Your belief in and support of the Honor System gives it endurance. It is a way of life, not an antiquated tradition."

Several days before Convocation, an 85th Anniversary Banquet for faculty was held in the Great Hall, with Rector F.N. "Red" Hofer as speaker.

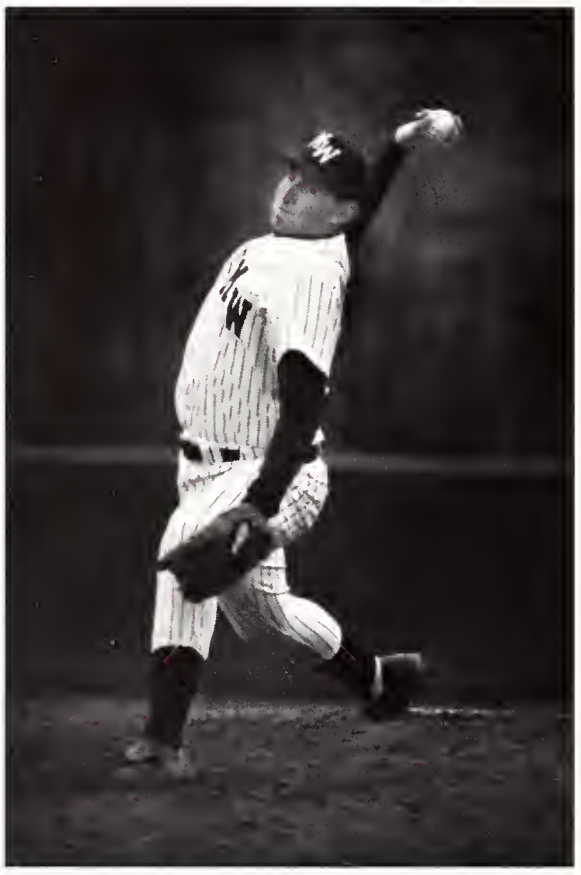
THE THIRST TO BE FIRST

A look back at a season of "firsts" in 1992-93 MWC varsity athletics

The MWC women's soccer team stayed one step ahead of the field in '92, as Bev Hoover '95 and her teammates earned an NCAA semifinal spot and hosted the school's first-ever national championship in any sport.

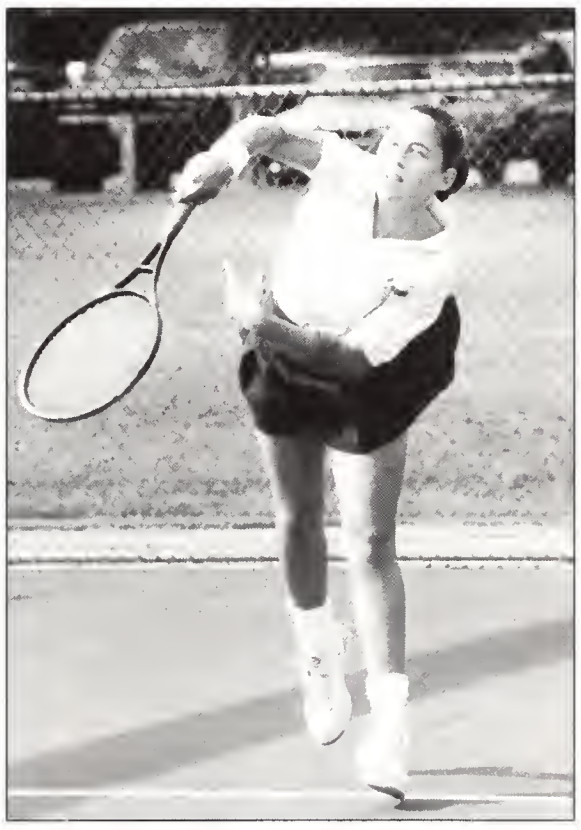


The ace of the pitching staff, Mark Matthews '94, hurled MWC to a third straight NCAA Tournament appearance.

BY VINCENT L. BENIGNI

With all of the remarkable success enjoyed by Mary Washington College's 21-sport varsity athletic program in the past two decades, it's hard to imagine new achievements being attained. Yet the 1992-93 season boasted many significant firsts. In a year in which 11 teams repeated as Capital Athletic Conference (CAC) champions, there were several notable new developments for the Eagles.

Mary Washington College teams registered an overall winning percentage of .667, with three teams earning bids to the NCAA Division III Tournament. Both women's tennis (NCAA champions in 1988 and 1991) and women's soccer advanced to the semifinals, the first time two Eagle teams soared to that plateau in one season. Furthermore, the women's soccer team (16-6-1) — coached by Virginia College Division Coach of the Year Kurt Glaeser — captured three NCAA Tournament games, all by 1-0 shutouts, and hosted the first NCAA Division III



Anna Jackson '94 won her final 13 singles matches to help MWC to the NCAA national semifinals. She also won the '92 ITA/Rolex Regional singles crown.

Garrett Moyer '94, a three-time All-CAC performer, contributed to a men's tennis team which won CAC and state titles.

Aaron Reed '94 scored 31 goals to help MWC men's lacrosse to a best-ever 9-4 record.

National Championship on the MWC campus, when eventual champion Cortland State, California-San Diego and Massachusetts-Dartmouth (which beat MWC, 1-0 in overtime in the semifinals) met in mid-November. The women's tennis team (14-3) of three-time CAC Coach of the Year Ed Hegmann advanced to the semifinals (fourth place) for the seventh time in 12 years. Junior Leslie Roland (singles and doubles) and sophomore Pia Holm (doubles) were named to the Intercollegiate Tennis Association All-American teams. Meanwhile, the baseball team of three-time CAC Coach of the Year Tom Sheridan earned a third straight trip to the NCAA Division III Tournament, losing to 1992 national champion William Paterson and eventual '93 titlist Montclair State. All three of the aforementioned MWC teams repeated as CAC champions.

The women's swimming team finished at 9-2, including a third straight CAC title and a best-ever 11th-place showing at NCAA nationals. Buoyed by junior transfer (Clemson University) Shannon Hutcherson, MWC claimed six All-Americans. The CAC Female Swimmer of the Year set seven school records and earned seven All-American citations, including an individual national championship in the 200-yard backstroke; the victory was the first ever by an MWC athlete at an NCAA national event. Teammates Amanda Clair, Amanda Dresser, Sarah Hertz, Sarah King and Liz Darcy became All-Americans in the relay events. Meanwhile, the men's swimming team also won a third straight conference championship in a 6-6 campaign. Men's and women's head coach Paul Richards was named CAC Men's Coach of the Year for the third time.

The men's tennis team snared six of a possible nine singles/doubles flights to take its first Virginia Intercollegiate Tennis Association title. In its 8-4 season, MWC also won a third consecutive CAC crown under head coach Roy Gordon. In registering the program's first winning season, the men's lacrosse team of CAC Coach of the Year Kurt Glaeser emphatically made one message clear. Doormat days are over in Fredericksburg, as an exciting 9-4 Eagle squad testified in finishing second in the CAC standings.

Capturing her first Eastern College Athletic Conference (ECAC) South Region title was head women's volleyball coach Dee Conway. The 31-10 Eagles — led by All-Region and All-CAC hitter Tamalyn Reed — swept past host Allentown College and Hunter College at ECACs while recording a second straight 30-plus victory season. Conway also led her softball team (18-11) to an ECAC runner-up finish, behind two-time CAC Player of the Year Tasha Thomas, a pitcher who went 11-5 with a 1.68 earned-run average.

Continuing its perennial success, the riding team of head coach Carol Hawley won the Region VII overall point title, and finished fourth at the National Intercollegiate Horse Show finals. Senior Christine Fullin became the first rider in regional history to win three straight individual classifications after capturing Open Fences for the second consecutive year. Fullin and soccer player Dodd Terry (who started all 81 games in four seasons) were named the College's Female and Male Scholar-Athletes of the Year for 1992-93. Speaking of soccer, the men's team continued an impressive nine-year run of 116-38-15

Championships. Classmate Lesley Krush posted a stunning second-place clocking in the 1,500 meters at outdoor nationals to become an All-American for the first time. The men's track team captured a first-ever CAC title, establishing a conference point record while claiming 10 individual championships. Soper's cross country teams again performed at a high level. The men's and women's teams repeated as CAC champions (freshman Allison Coleman and senior Murray Chesno were CAC Athletes of the Year), with the women also taking a state Division II-III and the Mason-Dixon Conference Championship. In fact, the women swept Mason-Dixon crowns (cross country, indoor and outdoor track) for the first time in school history.

Shortstop Tasha Stancill '96.

Women's lacrosse received strong performances from defender Candice Malone (34), also a field hockey Academic All-American, and All-Region goaltender Ashley Young (15).

under head coach Roy Gordon. MWC won its third Virginia Intercollegiate Soccer Association (VISA) title in five years as well as repeating as CAC champions while registering a second consecutive undefeated conference campaign; senior striker Tony Trepal was tabbed CAC Player of the Year for the second straight year after a 17-goal campaign. The fleet co-captain finished second in career goals (52) and points (123).

Also racing to both individual and team honors were the track and field teams of head coach Stan Soper. The women's team claimed All-Americans in both indoor and outdoor competition. Senior Tammy Buhite became an All-American for the fifth and sixth times when she finished fifth in the triple jump at indoor nationals, and then sixth at the NCAA Outdoor

Senior Tammy Buhite became an All-American for the fifth and sixth times, finishing fifth in the triple jump at NCAA indoor nationals and sixth at outdoor nationals. She's a native of Fredericksburg.

Junior David Winningham was one of MWC's top scorers and three-point threats in '92-'93.

Head coach Dana Hall led field hockey to a school record 13-game win streak en route to a 15-3-1 season and an ECAC regional tournament appearance. Junior April Moshos was named a third-team All-American and the CAC Player of the Year, while classmate Candice Malone was listed on the National Academic All-American team. Hall's women's lacrosse team (with nine freshmen) lost close games to a number of nationally ranked opponents this past spring.

Women's basketball reached the history books by winning a school record 11 straight games in February en route to a 19-7 season, the second-best in MWC annals. Head coach Connie Gallahan's contingent upset four-time NCAA entry Marymount on the road in the streak, 88-85, behind 30 points from First-Team All-CAC forward Chris Gleisner, the ECAC South Region Player of the Week following that effort. Marymount eventually turned the tables in the CAC championship game, but MWC loses just one player from last year's team. The men's basketball team of Tom Davies advanced to the CAC semi-finals for the third straight season, and played at the Capital Centre in Landover, Md., for the first time, defeating St. Mary's, 77-68 during the regular season. The game was televised regionally.

Excitement abounds in anticipation of 1993-94. The CAC welcomes regional stalwart Salisbury State University as the eighth team in this increasingly competitive conference. MWC's Battleground Complex continues to grow into one of the nation's finest small-college outdoor facilities with potential plans for six lighted tennis courts (which would bring the total to 16) and a possible "stadium setting" at the Eagle baseball field — more firsts in the continuing success story of MWC varsity athletics.

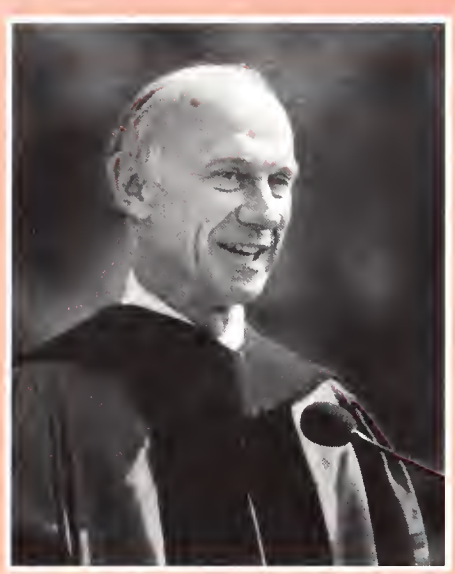
Commencement '93



Gordon K. Davies

Under a clear, sunny sky 801 students were awarded degrees at Mary Washington College's 82nd Commencement on May 8. The college also recognized two Virginians and a New York artist with honorary doctoral degrees, and two faculty members and a student received top honors from the College. Additionally, professor emeritus status was awarded to a retiring member of the faculty.

For the first time, the faculty and platform guests in the line of march were accompanied by "Denny & Dunipace," a championship bagpipe band from Washington, D.C. Raymond B. Scott, associate professor of chemistry, is a member of the group.

In his address, Director of the State Council of Higher Education Gordon K. Davies urged the crowd of about 5,000 to "do better." The pressure to limit costs of public higher education has forced the academic community to find new ways to do its work, he said, and reminded graduates that they, too, must continue to seek ways to be a force for good in the world, despite negative influences. "We need to do better, and we can," he said. "We need to make this a better world."

Since 1977, Dr. Davies has headed the State Council, Virginia's planning and coordinating body for 39 public and 42 private colleges and universities.

From 1988-89, he was a member of Virginia's Commission on the University of the 21st Century, which outlined needed changes in academic programs, administrative procedures, and organizing principles for colleges and universities.

Dr. Davies holds degrees in English and the philosophy of religion from Yale University. Before joining the State Council in 1973 as an associate director, he helped found Stockton State College in New Jersey and served as dean of the college. He also taught at Yale and in the Harvard-Yale-Columbia Intensive Summer Studies Program, was a consultant for IBM, and served in the Navy. A rock-climber and mountaineer, Dr. Davies has climbed in North and South America, Europe and Nepal. He has run in about 24 marathons, including five in Boston.

The College conferred doctor of humane letters degrees on Gordon K. Davies; A. Elizabeth Morrison '26, founder, proprietor and director of Hazelwild Farm in Spotsylvania; and Alfred Levitt, a New York artist and art educator, as well as an acclaimed researcher in the field of prehistoric culture.

Miss Morrison holds a bachelor's degree in physical education from Fredericksburg State Teachers College, which later became MWC. She is the founder of Hazelwild Farm, a 509-acre horse farm that provides facilities for the College's nationally recognized equestrian program. The farm also offers riding instruction for area youth, a country day school and summer camps. For five of the past seven years, the College's riding program has been ranked among the top 10 programs in the nation.

Mr. Levitt, a distinguished New York artist, studied with Robert Henri and later with Hans Hofmann. The Metropolitan Museum of Art owns 22 of his paintings, and his works have been exhibited at such museums as the Whitney Museum of American Art, the Brooklyn Museum and the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts.

Sammy Ray Merrill, professor of German, was presented the Grellet C. Simpson Award, the College's most prestigious award for a senior member of the faculty. Merrill has taught German at the College since joining the faculty in 1973. He holds a doctorate in German from Cornell University, a master's in German from Duke University, and a bachelor's in religion from Wake Forest University. A member of the Foreign Language Association of Virginia and the American Association of Teachers of German, Merrill is a recognized expert on German language, literature and culture. In 1976, he was awarded a fellowship by the National Endowment for the Humanities to study at Princeton University, and has been the recipient of numerous national and international awards.

John T. Morello, associate professor of speech, received the MWC Alumni Association Outstanding Young Faculty Member Award, which is presented annually to a faculty member who has served the College for at least two, but not more than five years. The award was established five years ago with an endowment of $35,000 from the Alumni Association.

Morello joined the faculty in 1989, having previously served on the faculties of James Madison University and Simpson College. He holds a doctorate from Wayne State University and a master's degree from Northern Illinois University, both in speech communication. He also holds a bachelor's degree in government from the College of William & Mary.

For four years, he has been director of the College debate team, which has been nationally ranked consistently. In 1991 and 1992, the team qualified for the National Debate Tournament, and was ranked seventh in the nation this past year.

Amy B. Newland, who graduated with a bachelor's degree in business administration, was awarded the Colgate W. Darden Jr. Award, which is presented annually to the student with the highest grade point average. She earned 3.91 on a 4.0 scale. Amy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry C. Newland of New Market, Va., and is a graduate of Stonewall Jackson High School. She was selected for membership in Phi Beta Kappa Honor Society in 1992, and was a member of the College's nationally ranked equestrian team.

Ms. Newland earned all A's for four semesters and was awarded a business administration degree with a concentration in accounting. She planned to sit for her CPA exam soon after graduation.

Cornelia D. Oliver, distinguished professor of art, was awarded emeritus status, which is granted by the College's Board of Visitors to senior members of the faculty upon retirement. She has taught art history at the College since 1958. Before joining MWC, she taught at Holton-Arms School in Washington. She holds a bachelor's degree from Smith College, a master's from Duke University, and a doctorate from Catholic University.

Cornelia D. Oliver retired this year.

Commencement brings forth our best smiles.

President William M. Anderson Jr. presented the degrees.

Cappiello is Executive-in-Residence

Frank A. Cappiello, one of the nation's financial celebrities, was MWC's fourth Executive-in-Residence. His visit during April gave students and faculty a chance to ask questions about the stock market, the economy, and many related financial topics.

Not only is Cappiello president of a San Francisco and Baltimore-based investment firm, he is also an author, having written four books, including Finding the Next Superstock. Millions of Americans know him from appearances as a financial commentator for CNN and ABC television networks, and as a regular guest on the PBS show, "Wall $treet Week With Louis Rukeyser."

Cappiello has been a faculty member at Johns Hopkins University and is a distinguished visiting professor of finance at Loyola College in Maryland. He has lectured at the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania, the University of Chicago's Graduate School of Business, UCLA and Santa Clara University. He also received the Distinguished Service Award in Investment Education from the National Association of Investment Clubs.

Cappiello, president of McCullough, Andrews & Cappiello, made a nostalgic two-day visit to MWC. It was here that he met his wife, Marie Rhodes Cappiello '51, while he was attending Marine officer training school at nearby Quantico.

Frank A. Cappiello

The Executive-in-Residence Program is designed to bring leading U.S. executives to campus to discuss their work and business views. According to Michael B. Dowdy, vice president for College Advancement and co-chair of the program, Cappiello's visit was a hit with students. They asked many questions — including how to get money to start one's own business — a hot topic in today's tight job market.

Previous Executives-in-Residence have been Warner N. Dalhouse, chairman and chief executive officer of First Union National Bank of Virginia; Robert S. Jepson Jr., chairman and CEO of Jepson Industrial Corp.; and Phyllis Brotman, founder and president of Image Dynamics of Baltimore.

The Executive-in-Residence dinner was held in the Great Hall, Woodard Campus Center.

Self-Study Ends with SACS Visit

The 1991-93 Self-Study is complete, and Mary Washington College is now looking forward to its reaccreditation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS) being announced in December.

The College's process of self-appraisal ended in early March — after exhaustive evaluations conducted by eight administrative divisions, 21 academic departments and 10 criteria committees composed of faculty, staff, students and administrators. Beginning in August 1991, these groups evaluated nearly everything about the College — from its overall mission to its parking regulations. Published in January 1993 after an 18-month investigation, the Self-Study's two-volume report not only supports MWC's application for reaccreditation but also recommends improvements that could make MWC an even more effective institution.

The College presented its Self-Study to a 14-member SACS reaccreditation team that visited the campus this past March. Although necessary for reaccreditation — a Self-Study is required every 10 years — the report also identified areas where the College needs to concentrate its efforts and resources, and it analyzed the academic programs of the 21 departments, detailing strengths and deficiencies. As a result of its campus visit, the SACS reaccreditation committee compiled a report confirming many of the College's recommendations and adding a number of its own.

The visit allowed the College to demonstrate through documents and interviews that it continues to meet the association's criteria for membership, first attained over six decades ago in 1930.

Phi Beta Kappa Initiation

An estimated 65 people were present at this year's initiation of new members into the Kappa of Virginia Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa at Mary Washington.

James Farmer, distinguished visiting professor of history and American studies, was made an honorary member. Elizabeth Neatrour '54, professor of French and Russian at James Madison University, was initiated as an alumni member. About 30 "in course" members were also inducted.

Dr. Farmer was chosen for this honor because his work exemplifies the ideals of Phi Beta Kappa, according to David Cain, MWC professor of religion and president of the local chapter. "His intellectual excellence plus vitality and also his commitment to values and to seeing that ideas make a difference made the choice an appropriate one," he said. "The chapter honored him, but he, in turn, honors the chapter with his presence and his life's work and witness."

At the initiation, Dr. Farmer spoke a few brief, warm remarks about the honor, and said it especially touched him to be made a member because his late wife was also a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

National Award Goes to MWC Student

Gregory A. Sotzing, an honor graduate of Mary Washington College, received a national award for outstanding achievement in research as an undergraduate student. Sotzing is the son of Mary Sotzing of Spotsylvania County, Va., and Edward L. Sotzing of Chancellor, Va.

The "POLYED Undergraduate Polymer Research Award for 1993" was presented to Sotzing by the joint polymer education committee of the American Chemical Society divisions of Polymer Chemistry and Polymeric Materials. A polymer is a large molecule consisting of many small molecules linked together, the most common examples being simple plastics. A total of five students nationwide received the award.

The award was the result of an honors research project and a paper Sotzing presented at a National Conference on Undergraduate Research at the University of Utah in Salt Lake City. The paper, titled "Aryltrifluoroethylidene (3F) Linked Diamines for High Performance Polyimides," described the preparation of several new organic molecules and their incorporation into new polymers which have potential for being stable at relatively high temperatures (600°F). These types of materials have applications in the aerospace and electronics industries.

Sotzing, who was named to the Dean's List for the spring 1993 semester, also received MWC's "American Institute of Chemists Award" in recognition of his potential for advancing the chemical profession. The award was based on his record of leadership, ability, character and scholastic achievement during four years of study at MWC. He is now enrolled at the University of Florida in Gainesville in graduate studies in polymer chemistry.

At a conference on Writing Across the Curriculum, which was held in Charleston, S.C., four MWC faculty members were part of a panel discussion on "The Second Stage: Putting Structure into Writing Across the Curriculum." The panelists were: Daniel C. Abel, assistant professor of biological sciences; Claudine L. Ferrell, associate professor of history; Carol S. Manning, associate professor of English and director of the Writing Intensive Program; and Joanna L. Reynolds, associate professor of modern foreign languages.

Taddesse Adera, assistant professor of English, served as organizer and chairperson of a session about "Literature from the Horn" at the 35th annual African Studies Association Conference in Seattle, Wash. In addition, he presented a paper titled "The Dilemma of a Petit-bourgeois: Bealu Girma from The Call of Red Star to 'Operation Red Star.'" He was also elected to a five-year term on the Executive Committee of the division on African Literature in the Modern Language Association of America.

Mehdi Aminrazavi, assistant professor of religion, lectured at Virginia Theological Seminary on "Sufism of Rumi," and at St. Joseph's University in Philadelphia, Pa., on the Persian Roots of Solstice. He also read his paper, "Mysticism and Chivalry in Traditional Sports of Persia," at the American Academy of Religion in San Francisco. Dr. Aminrazavi translated from Persian into English "The World View and Philosophical Perspectives of Hakim Nizami Ganjavi" by S.H. Nasr, which was published in Muslim World.

Jack Bales, instructional services and reference librarian, and Richard H. Warner, professor of history, read papers at the spring meeting of the New England Historical Association in Portland, Maine. Bales read "Kenneth Roberts and Boon Island: An Essay in Historical and Literary Perception," and Warner read "Captain John Deane and The Wreck of the Nottingham Galley: A Study of Bibliography and History." Both papers deal with the famous 1710 shipwreck.

Rosemary Barra, associate professor of biological sciences, and student researcher Michael Compton presented the results of their research, "Differentiation of Promyelocytic Leukemia HL-60 and Differential Sensitivity to Human Recombinant Transforming Growth Factor Beta 1," at the American Association for Cancer Research's annual meeting. Dr. Barra has been elected treasurer of the Virginia Academy of Science.

David W. Cain, professor of religion, was the keynote speaker at the Association for Clinical Pastoral Education Virginia Cluster Annual Retreat at Camp Hanover near Mechanicsville, addressing clinical pastoral education students and their supervisors on "Theodicy and Pastoral Care." Dr. Cain participated as a distinguished alumnus in "Alumni-Faculty Forums" held during Princeton University's 1993 reunions. He took part in a panel on "Looking for God: New Quests and Old Hates." During the weekend, he also conducted a Service of Remembrance for deceased members of the 30th reunion class of 1963.

Ana G. Chichester, senior lecturer in modern foreign languages, wrote an article published in Inter-American Review of Bibliography titled "Current Literary Criticism of Virgilio Piñera's Narrative." She also presented a paper at the conference on Latin American Literature at Daniel C. Abel lectures in Combs Hall.

American University, "Metamorphosis and Illusion in Two Short Stories of the Fantastic." The conference was co-sponsored by the Embassy of Uruguay in honor or Uruguayan writer Felisberto Hernandez.

Rita M. D'Arcangelis, assistant professor of computer science, and Lindsay Mast, a 1993 MWC honors graduate in computer science, presented a paper at the Virginia Academy of Science meeting in Norfolk, Va., titled "A Computer Science Course Adviser System." Professor D'Arcangelis was also selected to serve as section secretary for computer science in the Academy for the coming year.

Daniel A. Dervin, professor of English, presented two papers at the International Psychohistorical Association meeting in New York City. One paper looped Hitler and the Holocaust within a psychohistorical feedback system, while the other paper analyzed the 1992 U.S. elections based on the theories of Melanie Klein. Dervin also read a paper on "Iron-Jung: The New Womanly Manly Hero in 'City Slickers'" at the Virginia Humanities Conference on Film and American Culture in Williamsburg, Va.

James Farmer, distinguished visiting professor of history and American studies, received a commendation from the honorable Ann W. Richards, governor of Texas, for his distinguished career as a civil rights leader and for the gift of his document collection on the civil rights movement to the University of Texas.

Lewis P. Fickett Jr., distinguished professor of political science, read his paper, "Prospects for the Indian Political Opposition in 1993," at the 32nd Southeast Conference, Association for Asian Studies. The conference was held at Hilton Head, S.C., under the sponsorship of the University of South Carolina.

Stephen W. Fuller, professor of biological sciences, reviewed the protein synthesis chapter in Starr and Laggart's Biology: The Unity and Diversity of Life. The Wadsworth Publishing Company required a critique of the chapter for clarity, level of presentation and accuracy.

Donald E. Glover, distinguished professor of English, wrote an essay, "Bent Language in Perelandra: The Storyteller's Temptation," a discussion of author C.S. Lewis' use of narrative. The essay was published in Word and Story in C.S. Lewis, University of Missouri Press, 1991. Glover is author of C.S. Lewis: The Art of Enchantment, Ohio University Press, 1981. In addition, Dr. Glover, as well as George King III, associate professor of physics and director of the MWC Sciences Institute, were nominated by the College to compete for the Virginia State Teaching Award, given by the State Council of Higher Education in recognition of those who have made exceptional contributions to teaching, research and public service.

James E. Goehring, associate professor of religion, received a National Endowment for the Humanities summer stipend, which enabled him to study a critical edition of Coptic texts that report on the life and times of the sixth century Coptic Christian abbot, Abraham of Farshut. The manuscript pages are scattered in various libraries and museums in Europe, the United States and Egypt. Dr. Goehring also organized and presided over the "Asceticism in Greco-Roman World: Antony of Egypt" section of the North American Patristics Society annual meeting at Loyola University of Chicago.

Stanley L. Groppel, associate dean for Graduate and Continuing Education, presided at the spring meeting of the Association of Virginia Individualized Studies Administrators (AVISA), held at VCU in Richmond. He presented a preview of his research about adult degree programs throughout the U.S.

Vanessa L. Haley, assistant professor of English, attended the 11th annual Key West Literary Seminar on the poetry of Elizabeth Bishop.

Dana Sue Hall, assistant professor of health and physical education and women's lacrosse coach, conducted a lacrosse clinic at Fairfax High School for over 70 high school girls from the Northern Virginia area. The clinic was designed to aid in the development of the sport of lacrosse in the state of Virginia.

Rosemary A. Ingham, costume shop and design supervisor, is the co-author of two books published by Heinemann Educational Books, Inc., titled The Costume Designer's Handbook and The Costume Technician's Handbook. She has designed costumes for the Woolly Mammoth Theater in Washington, D.C., for the play, "Free Will & Wanton Lust," and for the professional theater training program at the University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee for "Under Milk Wood." She also designed costumes for "Our Town" at the Utah Shakespearean Festival in Cedar City, Utah.

Christopher Kilmartin, assistant professor of psychology, was the featured speaker at the Botetourt County Chamber of Commerce's annual meeting. His topic was "Humor in the Workplace."

Brenda J. King, director of the Office of International Programs, was invited by the Institute for Multi-Track Diplomacy and NTL Institute for Applied Behavioral Sciences (formerly National Training Laboratories) to be a participant in one of a series of developmental work conferences for pioneers in the emerging field of Transformative Social Change, which takes a multi-disciplinary approach to building social systems based on partnerships rather than dominance. IMD's motto is "peacebuilding through collaborative action."

Janusz Konieczny, assistant professor of mathematics, had a paper published in the international journal Semigroup Forum titled "Remarks on the Structure of the Multiplicative Monoid of Integers Modulo m."

David J. Long, professor of music, was selected to serve as a judge for the 1993 Percussive Arts Society's 20th annual percussion composition contest. Along with two others, he will analyze and recommend compositions in the mallet ensemble category (five to eight players), which may include any combination of marimbas, bells, vibraphones, chimes and xylophones.

Carol S. Manning, associate professor of English and director of the Writing Intensive Program, is editor of and a contributor to The Female Tradition in Southern Literature, a collection of essays on Southern women writers published by the University of Illinois Press.

David J. Long teaching a music theory class in Pollard Hall.

Robert L. McConnell, professor of geology, had an article, "An American Migratory: Population Growth and Environmental Quality in California," published in Focus. The article also appeared in the September issue of Population and Environment. Dr. McConnell and Daniel C. Abel, assistant professor of biological sciences, have been selected to conduct a workshop at the 13th Annual International Conference on Critical Thinking and Educational Reform at Sonoma State University in California. Their presentation is titled "Enhancing Critical Thinking through Quantification of Population/Environmental Issues." Dr. McConnell spoke and co-chaired two workshop sessions at the second National Carrying Capacity Issues Conference held at Crystal City.

Mark G.R. McManus, assistant director of Simpson Library and systems librarian, was elected to the Executive Committee of the College Library Section of the Association of College and Research Libraries in the American Library Association. As chair of the nominating committee for the African-American Studies Librarians' Section, he also serves on the Executive Committee of that section.

Patricia L. Metzger, associate professor of business administration, wrote a training manual in Job Corps Financial Analysis and delivered four training sessions in New Jersey, Philadelphia, Chicago and Atlanta to U.S. Department of Labor employees and contractors. She was also re-elected as a state director of the Virginia Society of Certified Public Accountants.

W. Brown Morton III, associate professor of historic preservation, was appointed to the board of directors for the Kathmandu Valley Preservation Trust, an organization dedicated to the preservation of historic monuments in the Kathmandu Valley of Nepal.

Forrest A. Parker, vice president for multicultural affairs, was elected president of the board of directors of Project Discovery Inc., a nationwide early intervention program for low income and at-risk high school students, based in Richmond, Va.

At the annual meeting of the Southwestern Social Science Association, Karen T. Parsons, assistant professor of political science, and Stanley Parsons, adjunct professor of history, co-presented a paper titled "Skewing the System: Apportionment Practices in 19th Century Congressional Elections."

Mark J. Rozell, associate professor of political science, read his paper on "Executive Privilege in the Reagan Administration" at the Reagan Presidency Conference at Hofstra University in Hempstead, N.Y. He presented another paper, "Executive Privilege in the Post-Watergate Presidency," at the annual meeting of the Southwestern Political Science Association in New Orleans, La. In addition, he introduced "Renewing Congress," a paper on post-World War II press coverage of Congress to the Brookings Institution conference.

Robert S. Rycroft, professor of economics, contributed a section to a recent book, Graduate Record Examination Economics, published by Research and Education Association. He also wrote chapter introductions and summaries for the second edition of The Economics Problem Solver, a book published by Research and Education Association Press.

Marie P. Sheckels, associate professor of mathematics and education, delivered a paper, "Using Outcomes Assessment to Design a Capstone Course," at the joint meetings sponsored by the Mathematical Association of America and the American Mathematical Society in San Antonio, Texas.

Thomas F. Sheridan, assistant professor of health and physical education and coach of men's baseball, attended the American Baseball Coaches National Clinic in Atlanta, Ga. He was appointed to the NCAA Division III South Region Baseball Committee and was selected as coordinator for South Region for Division III national baseball poll. In addition, Sheridan was named to serve on the American Baseball Coaches Association editorial review board, which is responsible for reviewing publications for Baseball Quarterly Digest. Coach Sheridan was also chosen to be a clinician at the NCAA Division III national baseball clinic held in conjunction with the Division III College World Series in Battle Creek, Mich.

Ronald E. Singleton, director of public information, was named to the advisory board of Off to College, an annual magazine guide for college-bound students.

Suzanne Sumner, assistant professor of mathematics, spoke at Howard University in Washington, D.C., on her research, "Hopf Bifurcation in Competing Species Forest Models."

H. Conrad Warlick, senior vice president for administrative and student services, is the author of an article, "Living on Campus, A Positive Choice," published in the 1993 edition of Off to College.

Richard H. Warner, professor of history, was selected to participate in a seminar on Early Modern Maritime History sponsored by the National Endowment for the Humanities. The seminar was held at Brown University in Providence, R.I., and was devoted to the study of the maritime world of the 17th and 18th centuries.

Paulette S. Watson, director of publications, and the staff of the Office of Publications, received a Medallion Award for "The President's Message and Annual Report of Gifts 1991-92" as well as a certificate of merit for the 1992 issues of Mary Washington College Today in the 46th annual Virginia Public Relations Awards competition.

Werner Wieland, associate professor of biological sciences, presented a paper he co-authored, "Periodicity of Alosa Larvae in the upper Rappahannock River," at the meeting of the Tidewater Chapter of the American Fisheries Society in Virginia Beach, Va.

Martin A. Wilder Jr., vice president for admissions and financial aid, received the "Richard L. Apperson Award" for outstanding service to students, given by the Potomac and Chesapeake Association of College Admissions Counselors.

Paul M. Zisman, professor of education, published a review of two books in the journal Educational Studies, winter, 1992. The books he reviewed were Learning to Go to School in Japan by Lois Peak, and The Japanese Educational Challenge by Mary White. He also wrote a book review of The American Evasion of Philosophy by Cornal West, in the summer, 1992 issue of Educational Studies. In addition, he presented a paper, "Educational Modernity: Dewey's Experimentalism as Market Exchange," at the 14th annual Conference on Curriculum Theory and Classroom Practice held in Dayton, Ohio.

The Jazz Concert always attracts an appreciative audience.

Alumni News

Stafford Campus

Plans are now underway for the development of a separate campus to serve as the location for those services currently provided by MWC's Center for Graduate and Continuing Education, as well as additional services which may be needed by commuting students within the region.

The proposed campus will be located on U.S. Route 17 in Stafford County, approximately three and one-half miles north of Fredericksburg, on 145 acres. It is anticipated that the facility will become operational between 1996-98.

The intent is to allow the current campus to retain its essential function as the site of a predominantly residential undergraduate institution and at the same time enable the College to meet the educational needs of the growing commuter population within the region, and to help stimulate the economic development needs of the area.

AWARDS COMMITTEE SEEKS NOMINEES

The Alumni Awards Committee seeks nominations for the following honors: Distinguished Alumnus Award, Mary Washington College Service Award and Young Alumnus Merit Award. The Alumni Association solicits nominations for these awards on an ongoing basis. Please contact the Alumni Office for guidelines, and submit your nominations to: Tara Corrigall '82, Chair, Alumni Awards Committee, P.O. Box 1315, Fredericksburg, VA 22402-1315.

NOMINATIONS TO THE BOARD OF VISITORS

The Alumni Association is soliciting recommendations for positions on the College's Board of Visitors. The Nominations to the Board of Visitors Committee reviews each nomination and provides a slate of recommended candidates to the Executive Committee of the Alumni Association's Board of Directors. Once this slate is approved, it is presented to the Governor's Office for consideration.

Please submit your recommendations to: Mary E. Loose '86, Chair, Nominations to the Board of Visitors, P.O. Box 1315, Fredericksburg, VA 22402-1315.

Erma Henry's Plans Will Benefit College and Family

Erma Whitaker Henry '49 has established two charitable trusts that will benefit both her family and the College. One will support endowment for faculty salaries, the other the Class of 1949 Scholarship Fund. The trusts provide income for the education of Erma's grandchildren.

Speaking about her plans, Erma said: "The charitable trusts assure that whatever may happen to me or my financial situation, there will be funds for Mary Washington and for the grandchildren's education."

Erma has long held the College in high regard. "The critical thing at MWC is that faculty, not graduate assistants, teach students — the emphasis is on quality teaching. I appreciate the fact that the College is focused on undergraduates."

A resident of Grafton, Va., Erma is an active, involved person. In addition to enjoying her family (two sons, their wives and four grandchildren), Erma was a docent at the Mariners' Museum in Newport News for five years, and has been a water-safety instructor with the American Red Cross for more than 25 years.

But of greatest importance to her is her deep involvement with the Episcopal Church. In 1988, she traveled to Russia to participate in the celebration of the millennium of Christianity. Last year she was in Salvador Bahia, Brazil, for the first worldwide Anglican Encounter, and she is the immediate past president of Episcopal Church Women in the Diocese of Southern Virginia.

In recent years, Erma has become more involved in the activities of the Alumni Association and the College. "It's very exciting to see Mary Washington achieve the national reputation it has in recent years. For younger grads, it looks great on a resume. And for older grads, it makes us appreciate the influence of MWC on us as we developed into young adults. Those four years made a difference in our lives, and I want to help pass that legacy on."

From Isebelle:

Our 60th reunion! The day was gorgeous and the campus beautiful. How I wished that more of our class could enjoy the day with us. Four were present for the class picture — Olie Mae Hope, Thelma Andrews Pitts, Mary Tarpley and me. A delicious lunch was served on the campus between Virginia Hall and Monroe. Dr. Eileen Kramer Dodd (charming and vivacious as ever) and Dr. Edward Alvey Jr. (editor of The History of MWC) joined the Golden Society for lunch.

There was a feeling of sadness. Reba Collier Thorpe was not there. Reba died March 14 — suddenly and quite unexpectedly. I doubt if she had ever missed a reunion.

I did not stay for the reunion banquet in the Great Hall. That is always an enjoyable evening.

Best wishes for health and happiness. Keep in touch.

Nell Blanks Paine was a transfer student to Mary Washington College. She lived in Cincinnati, Ohio, for a number of years. When her husband retired, they moved back to Lynchburg. Last year, after getting Christmas decorations up, she and her husband decided to go to Cincinnati to spend a few days with their son. In her note she suggested we get together.

Louise Jennings Creamer '36, I haven't forgotten my plans for coming to Lynchburg for lunch with you and will try to make it soon.

Betty Griffith Schmidt and a daughter took a trip to Ireland. Later, she went to Canada's Maritime Provinces. This might have been a year ago. It is on a 1992 Christmas card.

I recuperated quite well from my broken hip, and medication seems to have my heart rhythm doing fine. Now I have a "catch" in my back. I hope in these golden years I am not going to always have a complaint. Hope all of you are well and as busy as you wish to be.

Page Whitehead Hladky attended the wedding of her son, William. She spent Christmas in Connecticut at the home of the bride's parents, and then went for a visit to Annapolis. Page is still busy with the thrift shop.

Adelle Mansfield Goodwin spent the winter in Orange, where she was comfortably situated. Her husband is in a nursing home. Adelle had a nice birthday luncheon with her daughter, Judy, and husband and her sister, Kathleen, and husband.

Edna Harley Sickels sent me a Christmas card, which she thought was absolutely the only card in Arizona with a cardinal on it. They stay well and busy.

Edna Lovering Roe and husband Bob traveled by train to Winter Haven, Fla., to visit relatives. They attended a grand dinner party complete with three separate birthday cakes. However, the one that lit up the room was Bob's with its 91 flaming candles —90 plus one to grow on! They continue to enjoy concerts by the Alexandria and National Symphony orchestras, and occasional theater performances, as well as functions of the Cosmos Club. They attend luncheon meetings of the Food and Drug Administration retirees, held three times a year so old friends and associates can keep in touch.

Vernie Blankinship Knight phoned me when I was at my daughter's home in Washington. Her oldest grandson was in Spain working hard with eight hours of rehearsal and practice each day. He plays bass with an orchestra.

Lula Lee Llewellyn House '34 has moved from Newport News to Overland Park, Kan., where she lives at "The Atriums," only 20 minutes away from one of her twin daughters, Gay.

Mary Frances Rowe Varner wrote that she is keeping as busy as she can, and her friends have been wonderful helping her through the difficult time since her husband died. Her family spent Christmas with her.

In writing to Louise Jennings Creamer, I reminisced about our years at MWC — I should say FSTC. She replied: "The wonderful part about having been in Fredericksburg is that we knew it [was great] when we were there! I used to marvel that I had made it." Louise has moved to a permanent retirement center in Lynchburg. Her son, Bob, and daughter, Judith, came from San Francisco to help her move. Her daughter, Sally, who lives in Lynchburg, was also a big help.

While in Richmond, I telephoned Marjorie Dement Britton, who said she is "alive and kicking."

Dorothy McGuire Bunch had back surgery in April. Among those present at the Peninsula, Tidewater and Colgate Darden Chapters luncheon at the Ft. Monroe Officer's Club in January were Dorothy and Hattie Riggs Gaskins.

I received the wonderful news that I needed no radiation after my surgery at MCV in February. I quote from the American Cancer Society the following mammography guidelines: "Women 40 to 49: Have a mammogram every one-two years. Women 50 and over: See your doctor for a mammogram every year." I write this with a very thankful heart that I have peace of mind today. Did you read the article by Erma Bombeck in the April Reader's Digest, titled "Me Have Cancer?"

I attended the Peninsula Chapter brunch in April at the Ft. Eustis Officer's Club. Michael Dowdy, vice president for College Advancement, was the speaker. He spoke on where the College is today, and where it is headed in the coming years. Among those at the table with me were the late Susie Dickinson Hudson's sisters, Bertha Dickinson Taylor '43, and Lucy Dickinson Spencer '41. Also present were Margaret "Peggy" Smith Doley '37 and Irene Lundy Brown '39 and her husband, Vernon. It's hard to realize it has been 57 years since we were college graduates!

As I write this, I'm looking forward to my trip to San Francisco to see my newest granddaughter, Julianna Nelson Wetmore, and her brother, T.J., and their parents. Also present at her baptism will be my daughter, Elizabeth, and Christopher, her godparents.

The years roll on. How about some news from you for my next column?

When I returned home after spending the winter months in Florida, I was very disappointed to find the mailbox empty. Maybe you have forgotten that the Devils have the odd years for our news, and the Goats have the even years. All of your notes will be forwarded to wherever I am, so please write. My Florida address is: 8990 Lismore Ct., The Heather, Brooksville, FL 34613.

Olivia Kearns Clarke lives very close to me at New Port Richey. I was not aware of this until just recently. We must touch base.

Mary Jack Clary '38 also lives on the west coast of Florida. Does anyone know her married name? (Ed. note: See Class of '38.)

A letter from "Betty" Osborn Ward came a little late for the last news items. She wrote of the death of her husband, Kyle. They had been married 53 years, and she says that adjusting to this personal loss is her challenge for '93. We extend our heartfelt sympathy to Betty and her family. One of her joys was having Olivia Clarke and Ann Lipscomb Kline spend a week in '92 with her at Martha's Vineyard.

"Peggy" Smith Doley and I had a wonderful time over lunch in Williamsburg recently. She lives at King's Mill on the James. If you watch the golf games on TV, you will occasionally see Curtis Strange playing golf on that beautiful golf course. She had previously met with the Peninsula Chapter at a luncheon meeting, which she enjoyed, but had no specific news from our group.

I had a long conversation with "Lib" Johnson Birtwell before leaving Florida. She is still at her Bradenton address, but is contemplating going back to Narrows to be nearer her family, and to live with "Aunt Louise." Her voice sounded great on the phone, and she is the same old Lib — still in there pitching! Ever since our graduation, she has worked tirelessly for our class, and we shall forever be in her debt.

Ruby Lee Norris '36 and I had planned to attend the reunion events together this year, but regretfully I could not make it as my family was planning a fun weekend in Williamsburg at that time. There were to be 32 of us and a host of "kissing cousins" from James City County.

While I was typing this, a strange thing happened. Ruby Lee called and told me a wonderful story, which I will pass on to you. She said that she attended this extravaganza black-tie dinner recently at MWC with Clara Boyd Wheeler '31, who is a member of the MWC Foundation. Clara Boyd and her niece from Baltimore had just returned from a two-week trip to England, and Ruby Lee met them at the train station in Fredericksburg in the middle of a downpour! She accompanied Clara to the big affair as her guest, and this was the dinner that honored the Jepsons for pledging three million dollars to Mary Washington College for the Science Center! Maybe you read about this in the papers. Isn't it exciting! Ruby Lee said that this was one of those experiences she will never forget. I had read about all of this as someone in Fredericksburg sent "Peggy" Smith Doley an account of the affair from the Fredericksburg papers. Mary Washington College is very fortunate to have such wonderful friends who can assist in accomplishing its goals.

I was thrilled to receive a nice note from Dorothy Ball Eason, who has been recuperating from knee surgery. She is now back in circulation and feels that it was a success. She keeps busy with her various clubs — just enjoys them now without much responsibility. She writes, "That's nice, very nice for a 77-year-old lady!" She and husband Tom, who live in Lexington, Va., enjoy their five grandchildren, who are the joy of their lives.

Another letter from Lucile Holloway Booker, who lives in a small town in the Northern Neck of Virginia — Farnham in Richmond County. She writes that she and Derwin, husband of 51 years, are in good health and active in the Episcopal church, where he has been senior warden, and she has helped publish a history of the parish.

Frances Mayse Agreen sent an enjoyable account of 1992, which I am including in part: "An interesting year, 1992. Mostly good, but some not so good. I enjoy working two days a week — keeps me stimulated. Since retirement, life could be dull (like cleaning house), but it's easy to be involved and needed — that's important. I also am real dedicated to exercise, so I do water exercises and lap swim three days a week. Believe it or not, it actually energizes me — try it!

"Was scheduled for Canadian Rockies trip, but my heart developed an irregular beat, and it's been a lengthy process getting the right medication that didn't have side effects; yes, boring, but now I seem to be getting stabilized. It was OK to keep up my activities, but I wasn't ready for a long flight and trip, so I cancelled — next spring?

"Must say we enjoyed our 55th class reunion and made ourselves known. Rainy weather, but it was great.

"I've been fortunate to see a lot of my son and his family — I can't believe how fast they are growing. The boys are 8 and 6 and, of course, the greatest — the 1-year-old girl is fantastic! Never sleeps or eats — just go, go, go and yet so loving and responsive. Wears us out but we love her.

"You have a new class agent, and I hope you'll continue to be as responsive to her as you were to me. I enjoyed those five years, and thanks to all. Good health and joy to all!"

I ("Buff") continue to keep busy with four daughters, husband Forrest, and 11 grandchildren — just keep counting my blessings every day. Can you write me a note soon? Would love to hear from each of you. That's all, and stay happy!

News at Christmas was a bit more abundant this year. "Skippy" Milstead Goodwin writes they are celebrating the birth of a new grandson. One son and a grandson were helping build houses for the needy on the Yucatan Peninsula. This followed building for Habitat for Humanity last year. They were looking forward to a cruise in the spring from Cologne to Vienna.

The usual pictogram from Mitchell Lyman told of visits from relatives, teaching foreign students English, and staying busy with church activities. Mitch is still located at Chapel Hill. A card from Mary Jack Clary Brooks came from Destin, Fla. She was celebrating the arrival of a new grandson, too.

Zelma Timberlake Revere has had eye problems — cataracts and glaucoma, but is doing well. Her sister, Marian, lives nearby, and her niece is just four doors away.

Mary T. Kettenbeck Gademan spent Christmas '92 in Georgia with daughter Paulanne and family. Helen Hyde Saunders had knee surgery and hearing problems, but had attended two Elderhostels with her sister. Dot Ballance Skinner wrote of having been to several 50th anniversary parties and of going fishing. Her granddaughter was planning to spend the latter part of her junior year at U.Va. in France.

"Thornie" Crockett Lively has come back from surgery and is using a walker to go to horse shows, weddings in New York and to a horse sale in Lexington, Ky.

Alice Rife Wilson shared news of her grandson's wedding in May '92. Her granddaughter graduated from W&L in June '92 and has aspirations of going to medical school.

"Bill" Easley is getting around with a walker these days, but considers herself fortunate to have survived several serious illnesses.

The Voris clan was home for Christmas. We number 16 now. To date, our two boys and two girls have produced six grandsons and one granddaughter. The oldest has his driver's license now and talks of going to U.Va. when he finishes high school. Grandma has minor physical problems, tinnitus and glaucoma. Enjoys Elderhostels. Finally self-published Time for Rhyme, since no other publisher could be found — an ego trip which I swore I wouldn't take, but did anyhow. Take care.

Received a delightful note from Frankie Nash Young '37. We have a mutual friend, Elizabeth Angle, who is in health care at Westminster Canterbury in Richmond. Elizabeth requested that I write to Frankie for her and let her know she was thinking of her at Christmas time. In Frankie's response, she said that Lib Johnson Birtwell '37 had major surgery in late '92 and was doing well.

Zelma Timberlake Revere '38 received an honorary citation from Tuckahoe Presbyterian Church in Richmond for her dedicated service to the church and especially for her many years of service to senior citizens in the church and community.

Louise Coulbourn Wood '36 recently moved from her riverside country home in Middlesex to Urbanna, Va., and says she hasn't had any difficulties adjusting to city living.

Arcelle Coulbourn Collier was touring the state of South Carolina with three of her widowed friends. She is continuing her church and community work in and around Powhatan C.H., Va.

I visited Emily Slater Stevens '35 in February. She lives in King William County near Manquin, Va., and is quite active in her church and community.

Beulah Mason Evans '40 spent the month of February in Bradenton, Fla. She recommends it for everyone and plans to return to the same area next winter.

Jewel Hallett Goffigon recently moved from Cape Charles on the Eastern Shore to Cheriton on the Shore. Jewel and husband Harold spent many years farming in the Cape Charles area and believed it was time for them to retire and enjoy a little city life.

Edna Lovering Roe '36 and her husband, Bob, have moved to Westminster at Lake Ridge, Va. They know they will miss their Alexandria home, but are looking forward to many years of happiness in their new location.

Dorothy Martin Walker-Krewatch and husband Sam have moved to Sweet Hall on the Pamunkey River near West Point. They are in the process of restoring their beautiful 1700's colonial home.

I am always disappointed when I do not hear from my classmates of '39. Please write!

Winter of 1992-93 was long and hard, with more snow than we could cope with, followed by an equal amount of rain. We hope you survived it comfortably.

A note from Josephine Ewing Balzer told of a good two months in Florida golfing and seeing the sights. She had a talk with Peggy Snow Wolf, who is forming an alumni group in St. Petersburg Beach, Fla. Jo wrote that she and her husband visited their son, Rich, and his family in Orange Park, Fla.

Dorothy Day Riley is fine and busy with church work and her mother's care. Marguerite Jennings Helbush is very busy volunteering and cleaning out her accumulation of the years — shouldn't we all?

June Stoll Artunkal had a trip to China with her family and is now planning one to Alaska. Such energy! Jamie Redwood Witzel's letter tells of going to Magnolia Springs, Fla., to spend the winter months away from New Hampshire for the first time, and later enjoyed a trip to South Africa. A second trip to Brussels, Belgium, occurred later. What a year that was!

A card from Lois Loehr Brown says that all is well with her and her children and grandchildren. She talks frequently with Edith Patterson Breeden, who lives near beautiful Lake Tahoe.

I received a wonderful letter from Myra McCormick Cole, who lives in Temple, Texas. She attended Navy Midshipman School in Washington until the end of WWII. After special training in Roanoke and Bayonne, N.J., she was sent back to Washington and then to the U.S. Naval Hospital, San Diego, Calif. There she met her future husband (it only took two months and nine days), a frogman newly back from Korea. They moved to his home in Texas. She completed her federal employment at the local V.A. hospital. Then she and her husband traveled a lot. She also attended Temple Junior College while her husband was president of the board, and started a career in art. She returns to Virginia every summer, visiting Jane McCorkindale

Christenbury in Roanoke during her travels. Her family: two daughters and four grandchildren. She writes, "One summer I tried to take my husband, Harry, to see MWC as we drove through Fredericksburg. Much to my surprise, my old favorite road was no longer, but I did get to show him some of the buildings I remembered." She concludes, "If there are any other MWC ex's around here, please let's get together."

As a program officer of Christian Children's Fund of Canada, Lenore Magill Grimwood has traveled through Nicaragua and Costa Rica checking the workings of the fund's endeavors. She will make a similar trip in June.

A wonderful letter came from Florida this past winter, so I share it with you. "We haven't been to Europe, Asia or Africa lately, but we have gone to Eustis, Fla." In January, Jane Cornwell Spires, Addie Lee Barrett Penman and Elva Reynolds Elgar arrived at the doorstep of the winter residence of Virginia Gilmer Crumpler in Eustis, Fla., for a mini-class reunion. Addie Lee drove a thousand miles from her home in Houston, Texas. Elva, Jane and her husband had come from Ft. Myers. "After everyone arrived, we spent a few hours with everyone talking at once. We relived the years, from our arrival on campus, where we greeted our roommates, to graduation, when we said our tearful goodbyes to our college and friends. We also remembered Mrs. Bushnell, our beloved dean, and her famous approved calling list. There was non-stop conversation and much laughter all weekend. Needless to say, a good time was had by all. On Sunday morning we said our goodbyes until our next meeting, which we hope will be soon."

As owner and operator of a mobile home park, Hester Wolffe Spivey finds her hours well-filled. She traveled in the Carolinas and enjoyed a trip through the Panama Canal. Later she traveled through the Midwest. During the past year, she visited Arabelle Laws Arrington, Virginia Gilmer Crumpler, and saw Jane Cornwell Spires. She has a son and a daughter, who graduated from MWC in 1976, and one granddaughter. During the year she attended an alumni luncheon meeting in Suffolk, and a combined meeting with the Tidewater and Peninsula Chapters. With Eleanor Batschelet Smith and Benny, husband Griff and I went to Warrenton to spend a great evening with Arabelle Arrington and Walter. Spring had sprung, so it was beautiful in the wonderful valley of Virginia.

Eva Catafygiotu Topping received a Life Achievement Award in Washington, D.C., at the end of February. She was the only woman among seven honorees, who included an admiral, two congressmen, and George Stephanopoulos, then the White House communications director. We're proud of you, Eva!

Thanks for the great letters.

Gwen Miller Reams and Jack have moved into their new home at Ocean View. It has been described as a "mansion" with a clear view of the Chesapeake Bay. We wish much happiness for them and their family.

Class of 1943

Anna De Negri Lawson and I attended the Tidewater, Colgate Darden, and Peninsula Chapters' luncheon at Fort Monroe in January 1993. We were entertained by Mary Washington students and welcomed Robert F.R. Peters Jr. of the College Relations — now College Advancement — staff. We were glad to see Mary Pride Hunninghake and Emma Jane Davis McDermott, who was visiting her sister in Norfolk. Many of us hadn't seen Emma Jane in years, and it was good to see her and hear of her family. As a widow, she has settled in their home at Manteo, N.C.

Margaret Marshall Heimbach and Joe have gone to Colorado to visit family and friends. Ursula Gonder Schiefelbein and Rollin vacationed in Florida this winter. After Disney World fun, they met lots of people who had been newcomers with them in New Jersey in the 1950s. They had settled Ursula's mother in a nursing home, but she was ready to go home upon their return. Ursula had a nice phone visit with Ginny Tappin Nolan in Florida. Despite her health, Gin manages well, and was expecting guests for dinner. Soon after their conversation, Ursula received a fresh bouquet of flowers from Gin! I, too, received a lovely bouquet at Valentine's and was so surprised. I was sure she was on her way to visit, and while she wasn't then, I hope she will!

Marguerite Tuck Anderson and her husband spent the winter in Arizona. It was a special thrill for Mary Frances Featherston Ball to get to see her again. Mary Pride Hunninghake writes me that she "hadn't been on a mule ride but rode a raft down the Colorado River, and loved it all." I called Mary and learned that Sara Boggs invited her, Sallie Jacob '44 and Lil Joffinton Jonus '45 for a time-share visit in Georgia. Mary is also enjoying Tides Inn of late.

Kay Kelsey is back in Newbern, N.C., and is the mother of seven children. Following her husband's death, she went to work in civil service. Isobel Elliot Taylor and husband Charlie were in Bermuda celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary.

Anna De Negri Lawson, Gwen Miller Reams and I attended the Peninsula Chapter Brunch at Fort Eustis in April. It was good to hear from our speaker, Michael B. Dowdy, who reviewed development at the College.

Dr. Katharine Ferris Nutt wrote to us from Tucson, Ariz., with the following news: "The spring of 1992 was a gala one — a trip to Europe and finally getting to Florence to see the statue of David. Then a month after my return came the 50th anniversary at MWC and the thrill of receiving the Distinguished Alumnus Award. In July, I traveled to the Sunshine Coast, north of Vancouver, for a week, then back to Colorado. It was my 30th summer in the Fairplay area. In 1962 a friend and I acquired land and built two cabins. We were truly pioneers as we were the first to build in an area of private land on the edge of Pike National Forest. Now we have many neighbors.

"This past winter I picked up some pin money, literally, as I paid for my league bowling with what I earned grading a history of Mexico correspondence course for the University of Wyoming. Guess I'll be doing it indefinitely. I've provided background lectures on ancient cities for a Bible study class, and I've been involved in pastoral care. In June I will return to Colorado and the cabins. I expect to resume hiking, trout fishing, and pleasure reading, as well as to rendezvous with the many friends whom we see only in the summer.

"A highlight of the year has been corresponding with my old roommate, Betty Collins Burke, as the result of a friendship renewed at last year's reunion."

This column needs your news, so write!

From Dorabelle:

It is with pleasure that I report the 50th reunion of our class was a tremendous success. We were wined, dined and treated royally by the staff and volunteers for the entire weekend. "No stone was left unturned" to make our stay at MWC a most pleasant experience. Our special thanks to Rob and Ginny Peters, who were always on hand to cheerfully give assistance.

We had 45 class members present for most of the festivities, and we just wish all could have been present. It seemed as if we had been together all through the years!

We were extremely saddened by the death of Beulah Spain Harrison's husband on May 31 and sorry she could not be with us for Reunion Weekend. Our deepest sympathies.

There were many celebrations during the weekend, including a birthday cake and champagne for Dr. Edward Alvey, our beloved 91-year-old former dean of education. Elizabeth Winfree Quaiff had a 50th wedding anniversary on Saturday, June 5 — which she and her husband, Charles, were to celebrate on June 12, so that she might attend our 50th class reunion.

We missed our classmates who could not be with us for this significant occasion. We shall be ever grateful to Margie Marek Nicholson and Daphne Crump Rudilosso for arranging a fun class party. See you in 1998!

From Frances:

Welcome to the Golden Society — you are now the "golden girls"! We had a wonderful 50th reunion and missed you if you weren't there. We were special guests at the Golden Society tea and MWC Foundation reception. Because of rain Friday night, the president's reception was held under a blue and white tent in front of Mary Ball. Saturday brought the reunion picnic around a beautiful fountain between Virginia, Willard and Monroe Halls, class picture and party and reunion banquet in the Great Hall (the new-to-us Woodard Campus Center). We all enjoyed the wonderful food, fried chicken, shrimp salad, brownies, roast beef and a variety of cakes. The dining room buffets were also great.

Our class party was highlighted by Dr. Alvey's presence. We had an early birthday cake for him. Daphne Crump Rudilosso, Marjorie Marek Nicholson, Lee Hall Archer and Charlotte Hawthorne Cheatham did a wonderfully funny skit about how things have changed at MWC since 1943! We had "our" songs to sing, and a good time was had by all. A tremendous "thank-you" to these girls!

We were delighted that Ann Dennis Ryan, Ann Mason Gall and Dick and Peg Logan came from California, Betty Rogers Zylewitz from Oregon and Donna Shearer Fontaine from Texas.

Betty Zylewitz wrote that she had a cruise on the Queen Elizabeth II July '92 and 16 days in Europe October '92.

I had a wonderful letter from Stacia Douros Mandaleris in February. Her daughter, Elaine, graduated from MWC and taught seven years in Fredericksburg. She and her husband are now in Virginia Beach. Stacia also has two sons — the older one is a CPA, having gone to U.Va. and the Navy. The younger went to ODU. She has five granddaughters, who live close by.

From Jean Boyle Owen came news of the "Original Keysville Dixieland Band, a day of festivity for the town." The band is from Virginia, N.C., and S.C., and the music is Dixieland jazz. Two of her grandchildren from Myrtle Beach play clarinet and euphonium; one from Crewe plays clarinet. Jean's son from M.B. is coordinator of fine arts; the son from Crewe is a football coach. You will remember Jean was a music major and was in the MWC band. She received an award as Keysville Citizen of the Year in 1983.

Dick and Peg Logan spent Christmas 1991 in Australia with "the worst Christmas dinner I ever had," says Dick. They had booked a tour, originating in Australia, for Dec. 28. Because of circumstances, they arrived 12 days early. They "rented a serviced apartment in Sidney to eat, sleep and do laundry." With everything closed on Christmas day, they fixed chicken thighs, potatoes and fruit. This was the beginning of a 37-day camping trip of Western Australia.

I was disappointed Ginny Urbin Melvin wasn't able to be present at our reunion. Virginia Johnson Moeller, Dot Scaler (deceased), Rose Ronci Bunch, Ginny and I all graduated together at Tee-Jay ('39) in Richmond and MWC in '43. Ginny lives in New Orleans, and I spent the day with her in 1979 when I was there. She "well-remembers a history class of Dr. Lindsay's and education class of Dr. Alvey's. I loved Eileen K. Dodd — to my regret I was never in her class, but knew her through student government work. She was one of my all-time favorites, as were Dr. Iltis, Dr. Moss, Mrs. Bolling and the best English teacher I ever had, Miss McKenzie. We also had quite a few fine p.e. profs, as I'm sure you remember well." She sent her love to all of the Class of '43.

Barbara Tillinghast Jones wrote that her husband had a stroke a year ago, and she knew he couldn't take the walking and activities of reunion. She and Ralph are living in a Presbyterian retirement home near Charleston in Summerville, S.C., and he is making a very good recovery.

Kitty Pinner Grinstead had a fall just before reunion and was in the hospital. We missed you, Kitty.

The exact figure on the money raised for the scholarship will not be complete until June 30, but I know at this time we had over 50 percent participating in giving. You have again made me proud!

I need to hear from those of you who didn't return questionnaires — about family, children, grandchildren, and what is going on with you. We need newspaper clippings for the scrapbook. Your friends are wondering about you.

Christmas cards came full of news. Elizabeth Cumby Murray sent a picture of her family. Her home in South Florida was damaged from Hurricane Andrew, but has been repaired. Her 18-year-old grandson, Andrew, is a freshman at George Mason University.

Cards were received from Alda Perfette and her sister, Pat; also from Anne Benner Gee, who is building a new home in Shenandoah, Iowa, not far from her present home. She was to spend the holidays with her daughter, Jill, and her family. Virginia Pumphrey Webb and husband Glenn are busy with the U.C.C. church work and also have interests in herpetology.

Christine Hall Herndon writes that she substitutes as an organist. She spent two weeks in Hawaii with her sister and family, visited with her son and his family in Dallas, took a trip to Australia and New Zealand and did some snorkeling. Since she visited Fredericksburg a few years ago, she feels she will not be able to get to our 50th reunion — she will be missed. She also wrote about a roommate, Sarah Dabbs Briggs '43, who passed away January 15.

Marilyn Price Heady and husband Len are busy in Florida, having experienced the sight of the ocean coming three miles inland and to their front door. A change in wind at high tide gave her beach-front property! Dorothy Drake Grothusen and husband Harry traveled to North Carolina and Georgia, stopped at MWC and saw the many changes in the town and campus. Her sister visited with her from Texas this past summer.

Margaret Duke Ochi keeps in touch with Dorothy Elwell Ewing, since they both live in Florida. Nettie Evans Lawrey and husband sent a letter telling of their activities with the local library, politics, Montgomery County Food Bank and Manna Food Center. Their children, James, Betty and John are all busy with their work. Nettie also has time for her vegetable and flower gardens.

Jean Krout Haberle wrote of Patty Betts Hyde Fabrizio Manly, who lives in Largo, Fla. She was a freshman in Willard Hall but did not return to MWC. Betty Margerum Piper was Jean's roommate for two years.

Jean Wade Otte writes of her mother's 100th birthday last summer. The Ottes expect another grandchild in June. They don't travel too much because of Ed's back problem.

Virginia Hawley Butler writes of her daughter, Bonnie, who is teaching at Virginia Tech; daughter Sue Ellen is a doctor in the emergency room of a hospital near Roanoke, Va. Her grandchildren are in school — Gene is a junior at Virginia Tech, James is a senior in high school, Elizabeth is a junior at Duke University, and Frank is in the fourth grade.

Betty Lautenschlager Piel keeps in touch with Dorothy Woodson Baber and husband, who winter in Sun City, Ariz., and spend the rest of the year in Ivy, Va. Frances Whitehurst Grenoble has a new grandchild and a new daughter-in-law. Marguerite Klenck Lovejoy moved, but is still in El Paso, Texas. She went on a six-day rafting trip on the Salmon River with some of her children.

Lucy Johnson Pilson and husband Howard wrote a nice, long letter. Even though Lucy has to have IV feedings three times a week, it hasn't stopped her from keeping up with her church work and 4-H Club. She has been careful not to overextend herself. Her daughter, Anne, is administrative secretary at Woolwine Elementary School, where her 8-year-old is in third grade. Chris is in sixth grade and active with 4-H and a swimming team. Her daughter-in-law is a paralegal, and her granddaughter, Marcie, teaches EMR students at John D. Passett Middle School in Henry County.

Cena Carswell wrote from Roseburg, Ore., where she and her husband settled upon retirement. They have traveled quite a bit and spent their 50th wedding anniversary in Hawaii with family. She writes of having visited with Levin Houston, now deceased, on a trip to MWC in 1988. He had been very happy to see her.

A note from Hazel "Tommy" Strong Morris told of the death of Mary Griffin Underwood in November 1992; we were so sorry to hear of it.

Just received a letter from Fran Tracy in Guyana, South America. She is planning on retiring and coming home when she has a replacement. Her letters are fascinating!

A great big "thank-you" to all who were able to write me. As you can tell, everyone is busy with their lives and family. Keep in touch with those who are ill; they would appreciate it. See you at the 50th!

Last fall I decided to write to Maurine Brevoort Seely to locate her sister, Esther, who was my first roommate at MWC during the summer of 1942. How nice to receive a quick reply from her with news of all her family. Esther attended the School of Nursing at Duke University and later worked as an R.N. in the Veterans Hospital at Perry Point, Md., where she met and married Marvin Rudo, a psychiatrist, in 1948. They now live in Washington, Pa., and have two sons, a daughter, and five grandchildren. Another sister, Dorothy, attended MWC in 1944-45 and then went on to the University of Nebraska. She and her husband, Andrew Smith, now reside in Eldridge, Mo., and have three daughters, one son and one grandchild. Maurine started at MWC in the fall of 1940, attended two years and then took a job at Langley Field. She returned in 1945, graduated with our class, and then worked as a social worker in Richmond and Danville. In 1950 Maurine married John Seely. They have one son, a daughter, and one grandson and have lived in Carson, Calif., since their marriage.

It was good to hear from a number of you last Christmas. Susan Vick Warren wrote that they are enjoying having their younger son, Francis, with his wife, Sara, and their 3-year-old grandson, Ben, living in Warrenton, N.C., which is only one hour away from them. They are hoping their older son, George, and wife Carol can also locate work closer to home. Sue attended her 50th high school reunion in 1992.

Janice Worsley Mayberry said that she met with Mim Riggs Gay, Mickey Dixon Sullivan, Elizabeth Sullivan Vaughan '45 and Betty Atkins Powers for a mini-reunion in Richmond last October, and they had a great time together.

Elaine Jouard Collins and husband George had recently returned from New Orleans, where they attended a Marine Corps aviation convention, and while in the area, had a week's cruise of the West Caribbean on the New Amsterdam. They were planning to spend Christmas with their daughter, Stacey, and her three children, ages 15, 12 and 3, who live in Gresham, Ore.

Anne Wood Hilldrup went on a nice bus trip to Nashville and Memphis for 10 days last year. She and husband Gordon are still farming on a minor scale and have a few Angus cattle.

Betsy Hilldrup Morris wrote that she heard from some friends who attended their 50th reunion at MWC in 1992. Some of them had been Betsy's student teachers while she was in high school in Fredericksburg. They had a great time, including "enjoying" a fire drill in the middle of the night.

Speaking of 50th reunions, ours will be coming up in 1996, and I am pleased to announce that Elaine "Sally" Heritage Jordan and Carolyn Rohr Huebner have agreed to work on our committee. We hope to beat the record attendance of 56 class members set by the Class of '42 last year. Sally's life revolves around her husband, "Rip," and her grandchildren, who live on the same street. Her mother celebrated her 90th birthday in 1992, and there was a Heritage get-together of over 75. Carolyn and husband John were invited to have dinner with Miss Turman and her sister in March when traveling through Raleigh, N.C.

Jane Hockenberry Holden sent a notice about Betty Lou Loftis Sheffield's husband passing away in October 1992. Rev. John C. Sheffield was a retired minister of United Methodist Churches in Arlington and other towns in Virginia and had been a Navy chaplain in two wars. Betty Lou has a son, two daughters and eight grandchildren. Jane talked to Marilyn "Lynn" Bennett Blackwell when she went to New Jersey for her 50th high school reunion and stopped to see Sally Jordan and Rip on the way to her beach home in New Jersey.

Mary Janes Ahern enjoyed teaching a summer program in 1992 for the academically talented ages 11, 12 and 13 at Notre Dame College of Maryland. Her husband, Jim, has had some health problems and can no longer drive, but does get out and walk each day.

On one of my several trips to Orlando this year, I called Frances Bishop Johnson, who was from Rocky Mt., N.C., and now lives in Winter Park, Fla. She attended MWC for one year in 1942-43 and had gone to high school with Janice Worsley Mayberry and Betty Atkins Powers. Frances has lived in Florida for 20 years. She and her husband, J.D., celebrated their 49th wedding anniversary this year. They have three girls, who live in the local area.

Ann Briesmaster Robertson corresponds with Grace "Dolly" Bailey Fallin annually and said that Dolly teaches a preschool group in her home. Dolly told Ann that she keeps in touch with Margaret Elliott Council, who attended MWC in 1942-43 and now has three daughters and some grandchildren. I roomed with Dolly and Margaret in Willard Hall my freshman year, but had lost contact with them. Ann had big news in January, with two grandsons arriving six days apart, so she was kept busy helping out daughters Muriel and Carole with the new arrivals. In April, Ann saw Eleanor Walker Smith at a concert and heard that she had been on a missionary trip to Mexico, serving as pianist for the group. Ann still enjoys her travels and went to Norfolk with a group to see the azalea gardens and a museum.

In March my husband, Coy, and I went to England to visit former neighbors and friends. We saw many changes since we were stationed there over 35 years ago. A week after my return from this trip, I went to Orlando to get my mother and move her to Oklahoma to live with us as she was no longer able to live alone. Much to our sorrow, she was with us here for only two weeks when she passed away suddenly. My deadline for this MWC news came up too fast with these unexpected events, so please excuse me if I have omitted any news that you sent.

How lucky I am to be class agent for a group who responds! Lots of notes from Reunion Weekenders as well as news received too late to make an earlier deadline should fill you in on what many of us missed — a warm, collegial, congenial get-together!

First, oh so many thanks to Lois Saunier Hornsby, Miriam "Wickie" Whitley Knight and Geraldine "Jerry" White for their fine job of organizing Reunion and for the special touches they gave it that made it unique. Secondly, hats off to Bunny Johnson Wood for her '48 blue book of class members, addresses and brief resumes. I can't imagine how much time and patience she expended!

And of special note, Lois' son made a fine donation to the school (and thus a tribute to his mom) of a white piano on which there will be a plaque: "Well-traveled piano given by Bruce Hornsby to MWC for the parlor at Mary Ball, honoring the Class of 1948."

Angela Grizzard Wyche was devastated when she had to cancel her reunion reservation due to health problems. However, her roommate, Joyce Wrenn Warren, and suitemates, Martha Duval Bolling, Nancy Leary and "Jo" Webb Morrell left the reunion Sunday morning, drove to the Beach, and spent the night with Angela for a mini-reunion. What wonderful friends! We all hope for good news from you soon, Angela!

Jean Jordan Kimball: "My husband, Bill, and I really enjoy retirement. We go on Elderhostels, which have taken us from the Okefenokee Swamp to the Wisconsin Dells."

Jean Krug Robertson: "Betty Trout Marshall, Anne Cavedo David and I get together about three times a year at the Pottery in Williamsburg. Betty lives in Norfolk and Anne in Richmond. Anne and I have been in a bridge club together ever since graduation."

Byrd Stone Helguera, now two years into retirement, spends much of her time in volunteer activities. Last year she was a spokesperson for United Way of Middle Tennessee.

Margie Batty Dey has one grandson, Armistead Wheeler Dey II, born 12/12/92. Jerry White: "I am working as a Pink Lady at Martha Jefferson Hospital of Charlottesville, and as a chairperson at church."

Lorraine Mock: "It was great to be here and see everyone again." Jenny Spickard Manson noted that some of Mr. Schnellock's murals in the library had been lost in renovations and that Monroe Hall had been very much updated.

I was unable to attend Reunion, since I was in Philadelphia to meet my seventh grandchild, so I did a series of interviews (long-distance and otherwise), which seconded impressions of the following notes from Anne Scott and Mabs Royar. They were so much fun to read that I left them nearly intact.

"What a great reunion. It was wonderful to see so many friends again and to reminisce about old times. My God, how did it get to be so long ago? Sunday morning Sandy collected Cass and me for breakfast and a tour of Fredericksburg. The museum and battlefield park are fascinating. Although the town has grown tremendously, it still retains its charm. After a brief stop at Sandy's mother's house, Cass and I drove back to Washington National Airport, a never-to-be forgotten experience fraught with trauma — heavy traffic, highways going in all directions, and road signs no good. We toured the airport twice before finding the Hertz rental garage. We had a quick lunch at the airport and parted, Cass to Chicago and me to New York. When I arrived home, it was hard to believe I had been away only three days; but, after all, I'd covered 45 years. Must say thanks to Lois, Wickie and a number of others who worked so hard to make our reunion run smoothly. Cheers, Scottie."

"Busy, happy, laughing are just a few words that describe our 45th Reunion Weekend. Actually, it was quite an emotional time! Being on campus gave us the opportunity to attend the Reunion College sessions, campus tours, and the reception in front of Ball. A Southwestern buffet followed at Seacobeck, coffee and rolls in Ball started Saturday. In beautiful and welcomed sunshine, a class picture was taken on the steps of Monroe, followed by lunch served around the fountain between Willard and Virginia, a lovely spot. The class party brought everyone together in Ball, where we shared brief sketches of our lives. Dean Alvey visited with us and played a rousing selection of songs on the handsome piano that Lois Hornsby's son gave to Ball Hall. Our class was honored at a cocktail reception as being one of those classes with the highest gift totals and greatest participation in the annual fund. Sunday morning found Lois, Jerry and Wickie preparing a going away party, complete with a magnolia centerpiece! The highlight of the weekend was, of course, seeing the returning classmates — a beautiful group!"

Lois Saunier Hornsby sent the following recap: "It started for me almost a year ago with a meeting of other planners at the alumni house. After getting mixed interest responses from classmates during the summer, Sandy, Barney, Jerry and Wickie agreed to help. We phoned or wrote the 204 classmates on our current list and got in contact with almost 100. There were 42 at the class meeting in Ball. Now with the 50th in view, there is a good prospect for renewed interest and increased participation.

"I wished for each of you to be there to share the warmth of good feeling from renewed acquaintances and remembered scenes, and gratitude to have been a part of this campus in 1948 and to continue the connections! Please make a note to your dear selves to regroup in 1998!"

Life is busy, but it's such a treat to take a moment out and read about someone from your past! Please share your goings-on for the winter newsletter.

In February, Andi Dulany Lyons and Barbara Watson Barden decided that they must take a trip to Tazewell, Va., to visit Margaret "Myrt" Thompson Pridgen and wrote her giving several dates that would be convenient for them, asking Myrt to choose the one best for her. Imagine their dismay and deep sorrow when Myrt's daughter, Mary Inez, called to say that Myrt had died the very day their letter arrived. She had severe rheumatoid arthritis for many years, but had fallen in January and broken her hip. Surgery to repair the hip was successful, and she returned home only to have antibiotics make her so ill she had to return to the hospital, where she lapsed into a coma from which she never recovered. Myrt was a sweet, lovely person, with enormous courage and good cheer in spite of almost continuous pain and discomfort. She had only recently retired as a school librarian and had written that she was so pleased to have been well enough to attend her daughter's wedding in Richmond last year.

Andi wrote that winter was rather dull for her because she finally really resigned. You'll remember that she retired in 1990, but her boss made her an offer she couldn't refuse and she returned as a consultant for two days a week. This year, she found a replacement for her own job and literally cleaned out her desk and left, then found herself with little to do during the stormy days of winter. However, spring finally sprung, and her days have been filled with dirt-digging (earth-type, not gossip), weed-pulling, helping with renovations on "Inverness" and grandbaby-sitting. Son Scott and Missy moved from "Virginger" Beach (to quote Scott's 4-year-old) to Lynchburg, where son Hal and Wendy live. So now, all of the four boys are within a three-hour drive for Andi 'n Keith. A sad event in their family (amid all the other good news) is that Don Devening, Andi's first husband and the boys' father, died in the spring of cancer. As Andi and Don were married after our junior year, many of us remember Don; he was almost an MWC student himself. Our heartfelt sympathy to the boys and their families, Andi. On a happier note, Keith received a unique and deserved award in June as Most Distinguished Alumnus of their high school. Hope a handsome plaque went with the honor, Keith, and Andi could hang it right there as a daily reminder of the very special recognition for her very special fella!

And Barbara Watson Barden and Bob are grandparents again; their only daughter, Priscilla, had another little girl, Amelia. Son Rob and his wife expect another baby this summer, so the Barden family is suddenly burgeoning. However, Barbara is not only dancing for joy at the new arrivals, but also played the title role in a "non-play"called "The Deserted Crone." Now, that's acting! This is a Japanese drama, one of a quartet produced by the Actors' Company of Pennsylvania in hopes of taking a cultural step toward American-Japanese appreciation.

Our beaming Betty Bond Heller Nichols had a happy and busy spring. Her daughter, Ann, was married in April and, as B.B. put it, she pulled out all the stops! For a grand musical extravaganza, a woodwind quintet played before the service, and the organ was accompanied by tympani and trumpet for the pro/recessionals. B.B. said Ann orchestrated the whole thing and that she would skimp on everything or anything except her beloved music. Ann and her groom took a wedding trip to Vienna and had a wonderful time.

Charlotte "Chot" Baylis Rexon and Fred were unable to be present for the wedding in Bedford because they were in Florida preparing to cruise to Mexico for vacation. Jane Yeatman Spangler and Bob were there with bells on, but Dotty Booker Pinkham and David had just returned from their son's wedding in Colorado and felt they simply could not set foot in a car again immediately. However, all of these four Fabulous '49ers and their lovin' spouses will be together again at Jane and Bob's home in Charlotte, N.C., for their third annual mini-reunion. Such a gala occasion!

Dear Roland Westbrook sent Andi a clipping detailing a very prestigious award given to Diana, his and Irvin "Kitten" Whitlow Westbrook's oldest daughter. This is the 1993 Public Relations Award from the Special Libraries Associations, sponsored by Moody's Investors Service, presented to Diana for her article, "Not Just Books." Roland went to Cincinnati with her for the presentation in June. Dawn appeared in "Bojangles" at the Barksdale Theater in Hanover during the summer and also has several TV commercials airing in the Richmond and Valley areas. Roland added that all is well with the Westbrooks, and we know Kitten would be so pleased and proud of her dear family.

Ever faithful Lucy Vance Gilmer sent a card in March while enjoying a 24-day tour of China, including a five-day cruise on the Yangtze River. Lucy exclaimed that her journey was an exciting and educational experience! Since Lucy is well-traveled, we expect to hear next that she is striding through the steppes of Russia or dog-sledding around the South Pole...keep goin', Lucy!

In mid-May, Jackie McConnell Scarborough and Les were preparing for the annual national meeting of the American Society of Microbiologists, held this year in Atlanta. In celebration of the 25th anniversary of their Carr-Scarborough Micro Inc., they and several of their staff were exhibiting a prominent island-booth of C-S products for the 15,000 in attendance.

Their Atlanta United Methodist Church was host to the North Georgia Conference in June. As lay leaders in the church, Jackie 'n Les had many duties and responsibilities for that event. However, the annual Scarborough family reunion was hosted by other family members this time, so they could jes' go 'n enjoy! Jackie said everyone was well, children, grands 'n all. Noting that daughter Rene and Peter's li'l girl, Taylor, was about to have a birthday party (2), the highlight of the day was a special guest — Barney! What the current younger generation finds attractive in the big, ol' purple dinosaur escapes us; but then, what attraction did Mickey Mouse have for us?

Two years ago, we wrote of a former teacher of hundreds of first-graders in the Reedville, Va., school system. A graduate of the then State Normal School, word has just reached us that Elizabeth Grace Muir '25 died in May at 95. "Miss Elizabeth" was dedicated to her young, fledgling pupils over all the years and was beloved by all who knew her. She gave us our headstart in education long before that national program was formulated. A close neighbor during our formative years and lifetime family friend, we shall always remember "Miss Elizabeth" lovingly.

These are the last Class Notes you'll read (fall issue of MWC Today) before our Fabulous '49er 45th reunion next spring. Traditionally held the first weekend after Memorial Day, that makes Reunion Weekend '94 on June 3-5, but you'll receive all pertinent data from the alumni office next year. May we take this opportunity to urge you to execute and return your questionnaires, which will enable Kate Mayo Schmidt to update and compile our reunion book, a labor of dedication and love for which dear Kate graciously volunteered. And Ann Michael Sturgeon also offered to serve as our reunion coordinator, so please help her know what must be done by returning your reservation forms ASAP. A few classmates have mentioned hoping to attend our 50th in '99. Well, dear friends, since nobody promised us tomorrow, please try to attend our 45th. Too many may not be with us.

Jes' keep in mind the first of June for our very special reunion; we recall that our 40th was nearly the end of ol' June 'n Andi. Talk about hot 'n humid! Who knows, as we approach the Golden Oldies, mayhaps (courtesy of Mrs. B.) we'll be housed in an air-condished residence. You'll be hearing further; meanwhile, love to y'all from boffus.

Well, how are y'all doing? I received another great batch of newsy letters during the 1992 holiday season, which I am sharing now. And thanks to those who sent family pictures.

New grandchildren arrived in several of our classmate's families. Charlotte Leonard Wilder's daughter, Connie, and husband Fred had a son in May '92. Charlotte and Roland are enjoying having a grandchild nearby as their son, Floyd, and his family are in Texas. Fred, a musician, has about 30 cello students and also plays for weddings and receptions. Their other daughter, Jennifer, also lives nearby and keeps busy with church work — youth director, choir, deacon, etc. — as well as her full-time job.

Rachel Nickey Morganthaler's daughter, Ellen, had a boy in Sept. '92, and he came to Baltimore to spend his first Christmas with Grandma and Grandpa. Welcoming two grandchildren in 1992 was Billie Mitchell Hanes. Her oldest daughter had another boy in February, and their son, Robert, and wife had a baby girl in June. However, when this baby was only two weeks old, her 3-year-old sister became very ill with strep pneumonia. She was in and out of intensive care with surgery and complications resulting in a hospital stay of five weeks. She is fully recovered now, but Billie described it as a family's nightmare. Billie mentioned that she has spoken to Barbara Booker Palmer a number of times, and that Bobbie and Al spent the winter months in Naples, Fla.

Anne "Ozzie" Osborn Cox spent time in Virginia Beach in Sept. '92 and briefly talked with Billie and Bobbie while there. Ozzie, who lives in Plantation, Fla., sees Carmen Zeppenfeldt Catoni from Miami on occasion and said that Hurricane Andrew spared both of their homes. Ozzie and Frank only had an uprooted avocado tree rip through their screened pool/patio area. Carmen wrote that many of their friends lost everything. All of Carmen's family are doing well. She and Luis spent Christmas in Puerto Rico.

Jackie Newell Recker is planning to travel to Ft. Lauderdale frequently, as her daughter and husband have recently moved there with their baby boy. Jackie hopes to get together with Ozzie when she visits. Talk about a small world, Jackie and Jane Gardner Mallory play duplicate bridge together every week in Ponte Vedra and didn't remember each other until I wrote Jackie that Jane had moved to the area from Conn.!

In Altamonte Springs, Fla., Connie Metzger Verlander and Joe had a memorable year. After 36 years with Martin, Joe has retired, and that has given them an opportunity to travel — a Tauck Tour of the Canyonlands, Elderhostel in Utah and a trip to the West Coast. Connie is still active in real estate and is working on her golf game. Joe's golf and tennis games have improved since retirement. Their physician son, Mike, is a member of an anesthesiology group which services five major hospitals. Paul is a landscape architect, and daughter Mary has started to substitute teach. These "kids" all live in central Florida and have made Connie and Joe the grandparents of seven handsome children.

Clelia Boushee Bullard and Ray traveled from Jacksonville, Fla., to Wilmington, N.C., in August '92 to attend the convention of the Sons of Confederate Veterans. From there they went to Fayetteville to research local records of Clelia's ancestors and had the unexpected pleasure of staying in the newly restored Radisson Prince Charles Hotel, where they had spent the first night of their honeymoon almost 40 years ago.

Barbara Lloyd Hiller and Jim are well and busy, having fun in State College, Pa. They've traveled to Arizona, New Mexico and Colorado and also celebrated their 40th anniversary, being honored at a surprise party given by their two daughters.

Mary Mount Lind is teaching in Bethlehem, Pa., and wrote that her former roommate, Ann Wrigley, of Alexandria is still a member of the work force. "Some people never know when to give up." In Warren, Pa., Barbara Birkenmeyer Mader and Bill have joined the computer set. Purchased primarily for Bobbie's real estate business, they have found it fun, and it has opened up new worlds to conquer. Bill is involved in many volunteer projects — hospital, YMCA, literacy council — and they both are active in their Presbyterian church, having recently been nominated to the board of deacons.

Katherine "Kitty" Trussell Wilson lives in Lithonia, Ga. She serves as a Christian Science practitioner, and her husband, Grady, is retired. They have three sons. Two are married and have presented Kitty and Grady with four grandchildren. Keeping busy with church and community activities on Jekyll Island, Ga., Gerry Boswell Griffin and Dave also enjoy biking and square-dancing. Traveling in August '92, they spent two weeks on the West Coast — state of Washington, Olympic Peninsula and into British Columbia. Their children are both in Atlanta.

Bette Hove Moseley wrote from Newberry, S.C., that she is busy running her pool store — Moseley's Pools and Spas — since her husband's death in '91. Her son and family with two young ones have moved from Asheville to live with her. Bette has two other children and four more grandchildren.

Patti Head Ferguson sent greetings from Paris, France, inviting MWC travelers to look them up at the American University of Paris. She and Glenn are enjoying the city and find the university a very international place — students as well as faculty.

Eleanor Sullivan Lewis and Bob have moved to Niceville, Fla., and are getting settled in their newly built home. Nan Riley Pointer and Joe planned to visit them and also see former roommate Elizabeth Hunt Walker in Hattiesburg, Miss.

Virginia Felts Brown, her husband and new daughter-in-law met their son in Hawaii for the holidays. He is with the Air Force in South Korea for a year.

Had a newsy holiday letter from Marcy Weatherly Morris and Juney. Marcy had arthroscopic surgery to repair torn cartilage in her left knee. She fell going down a wet gangplank while on a cruise to Bermuda. Daughter Ellen and her husband, Rod, have moved back to King George, and Ellen is in the process of getting her bachelor of nursing and R.N. at Medical College of Virginia in Richmond. Rod is with Rappahannock Area Community Services Board in Fredericksburg. The grandchildren are growing. Kelly finished high school in June '93, Erin is a junior and had a story published in a volume of children's stories titled Tales of the Fredericksburg Folk.

Class of 1953

Brock is in eighth grade and enjoys guitar, baseball and baseball cards. Marcy and Juney's son, "Tip," keeps busy with his work and also enjoys fishing and growing Shitake mushrooms. His wife, Laura, teaches French in a private school. They have two children, Natalie, 7, and Paul, 5.

Not too much new with Irv and me. As with most Northeasterners, we "enjoyed" a good, old-fashioned, snowy winter. A consulting job for Irv with the Nat'l Science Foundation enabled us to take a brief trip to Denver, Colorado Springs, and then on to San Francisco. A short trip to Fla. with relatives helped us to get warm! As usual, I will end with a plea for mail. I can't do my job without your help.

From Marie Rhodes Cappiello:

A most pleasurable experience of the past year has been the receipt of two communiques from Molly Bettcher Staubach, whom we all remember as a killer Yankee. Now hear this! She and Bill are the most happy residents of western North Carolina. Their home provides the perfect summer spot for vacationing daughters and families from Wisconsin and Pittsburgh; and their daughter-in-law from N.J. (widow of their son, who was killed in a terrible plane accident three years ago.)

Molly sounds exuberant as ever; still artsy, although retired from teaching art after 14 years. She and Bill travel extensively — most recently to the Caribbean island of Nevis. This summer a trip to Alaska beckons.

In '91 Frank and I cruised from London to Scandinavian capitals, Helsinki and Leningrad, just before it was renamed St. Petersburg; last year the Alaskan Inner Passage; and this June-July a cruise with exotic ports of call: Athens, Mykonos, Yalta, Odessa, Istanbul, then Venice and Florence before flying home.

Our daughter, Annmarie, who was born a few days after our 1961 10th MWC reunion (I remember it well), will be married in October. 1993 is a busy one!

Ann Gaines Louisell

The College sent news of Jacquelin Carter Alexander, a Spanish major. She is now an artist, who began by knocking on doors asking homeowners if they would be interested in a painting of their homes. With the opening of her new studio in her home, she is now able to devote more time to her painting. She and husband Joe travel to Europe frequently, where she paints scenes of churches in the vale, chapels in the Alps and Austrian villages on the Danube River.

What fun was our 40th reunion! The 39 of us in attendance vowed to return for the 45th and sincerely hope that the rest of you will join us. We missed you!

Friday welcomed us with threatening clouds and promised rain; and when Saturday dawned dark and cloudy, we were concerned. However, by noon and our picnic on main campus, all was beautiful, sunny, and magnificently green.

Among those commenting on how great it was to be back at MWC for the first time since graduation were Sarah Hicks Hudson, Margaret Gooch Schoolcraft, Mary-Nelson Coleman Hoornstra, Joan Collins and Donna Gray Anderson. Donna shared her thoughts, "It was a joy to attend my first reunion, familiarize myself with dear faces and long-ago friends, and walk again this exquisite campus."

Traveling far to join us were Nancy Corbett Roland and Charlotte Benz Villalobos, Nancy coming from Seattle and Charlotte from San Diego. After the reunion, Nancy headed to Annapolis for a son's wedding.

Betty Anderson Buck, Nancy Melton Miller, Nancy Potts Wickel, Barbara Pritchard Jones, Martha Gilbert Smith and Betsy Dickinson Surles expressed feelings similar to Janet Clements Jacobs and Peggy Hopkins Johnson in their comments: "So proud of our MWC"; "This class is the loveliest of nice people — such fun"; "We never change"; "What a delightful group!"; and "Hope more come next time!"

Catching us up with her life was Nell McCoy Savopoulos, who retired from the University of Maryland in Baltimore. Nell has two sons who live in the area and two grandchildren, who are, of course, the cutest in the world! Mike is with the Dept. of Defense in Towson, Md. Shirley Widener Butler proclaims her family complete now with all children married. She and Jack have been married 41 years. Jack is semi-retired, so he and Shirley are starting to travel to all those places they've wanted to go.

Another recent retiree is Jane Lloyd, who taught at Duke University for 31 years. She claims to have taught every sport known to modern man! Carol Ann Smith Boyes is still happily working at the National Art Gallery in D.C. She says to look her up if you get to the gallery. Kitty Garland Obershain has the same job and same husband and is thankful. Joanne Harris is retired and traveling, "enjoying a great life."

Still excited about a recent Elderhostel biking tour of the Netherlands is Becky Spitzer Harvell. She loved it! Another Elderhostel traveler is Barbara Hunt Navas, who took a trip to France. She traveled by barge down the Seine, studied impressionist art, met lovely people and had a great time.

Those offering new addresses were Elaine Strawser Cherry, who resides in Vienna, Va.; Pam Powell Wiehl, Weston, Conn.; and Garnette Bell Crawford, Berlin, Md.

New class representatives are reunion coordinators, Peggy Johnson and Betsy Surles; reunion booklet editor, Kathryn Obenshain; and because no one spoke up in time to defend the class from Charlotte and me, we are still your class agents. Sorry, no protests will be considered!

Charlotte was off to other climes immediately after the reunion, and Hal and I left shortly for Nantucket to visit Nancy Newhall Hulburt. She and husband Harry spend their summers on the island and their winters in Virginia. Also with me at the time of this writing is my daughter, Lida Savonarola, and our grandson, Denny. Lida does her yearly two-week Army reserve duty in No. Virginia. She returns home to Lake Bluff, Ill., where she is in private law practice.

A closing note from the mail. On her way home from the reunion, Betty Buck visited with Virginia Bailes, who is retiring from her current job in home health care. She is returning to Strasburg to live with her mother.

Since last time, I have heard from Carlene Mitchell Bass and Marion Pleasants Trice, both telling me Joan Garner Ammerman lived in Richmond. Marion and I both phoned, but no luck. I wrote, but no answer.

Carlene wrote that she stopped teaching in 1989 and enjoys traveling. Tom, her husband, retired in 1991. Their oldest son is in information systems at VCU, daughter is a day-care teacher, and youngest son, Warren Bass, is a stand-up comic working out of St. Louis, Mo. Carlene's mother is going strong at age 84. They live in Ashland, Va.

Marion has lived in Richmond for nine years. Her daughter works in Alexandria with the American Chamber of Commerce Executives; her son is a lawyer, and her two other daughters live in Ohio and Fredericksburg. She has three grandchildren. Marion's freshman suitemate has four sons and one daughter.

Sue Sykes Shipman wrote to say that everything is fine in Mt. Prospect, Ill. Son Mark is in Florida starting a residential window-cleaning business. In January, son Eric resigned as a Midas Muffler store manager to attend college, and is studying law enforcement. He works full time as a mechanic while attending school two nights a week. He is a member of the Phi Theta Kappa honor society. Their daughter, Linda, and husband are going through the final preparation to buy a home. Sue is still working with AH Food Vending Company.

Joyce Stallard Bruce '55 has lived in Ruston, La., for 26 years. Arthur is a professor in engineering at Louisiana Tech. They have a son, two daughters, and three grandchildren.

At the end of March we were in Langhorne, Pa., for Lois Graff Reiser's oldest son's wedding. It was lovely!

F. Argyle Crump '41 is the librarian for the Alexandria Symphony Orchestra and has been appointed to the position with the Symphony Orchestra League of Alexandria to serve as program chair.

The Maytag man and I keep each other company while waiting for calls and letters!

From Christmas cards: Mary-Margaret Papstein Carter and George spent a lot of the year in Arizona due to the illness and death of George's mother. She also reported that Barbara Trites has remarried and moved to the Myrtle Beach, S.C., area. New name not reported.

Bob and Coralyn White McGeehan were wintering in Florida. Hope they missed the March blizzard! Sally Fan Hanger Moravitz reported that she is still dancing.

I had a wonderful, newsy letter from Alice Orem Hefner. She lives in Webster, N.Y., and has four children and four grandchildren. One daughter is a teaching missionary in Zimbabwe! Husband Bob retired from Xerox and is teaching mechanical engineering at Rensselaer. Alice works part time in marketing research and enjoys golf. She and her husband also enjoy traveling. Thanks, Alice!

I've seen quite a bit of Nell McCoy Savopoulos '53 this spring. Both parents have been ill, and she has been in Roanoke.

Please send me news of your adventures and misadventures.

I did not receive enough significant material for the last two issues, so it has been a year since I've written any news.

Laura Ann Miller Bealey worked as a chemist at the University Hospital Western Reserve in Cleveland the year after graduation. She then had three children, Virginia, Michael and Julie. She returned to college and received an A.A. in Fine Arts with honors from Northern Virginia Community College in Annandale in 1981 and a master's in studio art, art education, and art history from George Mason University in 1990. She was an art instructor for Fairfax County Schools in 1986 and 1987, and also did drawings and paintings in oil and watercolor, combined with lectures, and conducted workshops in the field. She had her first one-person show at GMU in 1988. Since 1977, her work has been exhibited in a variety of shows in Northern Virginia, Williamsburg, and Ocracoke, N.C. She and Olene Barrow currently have an exhibition on landscape paintings at George Mason University. Congratulations, Laura, for changing your career completely and being so successful!

Betty Lawrence Cafferty writes that she has been living in New Jersey for the past 27 years and is a reading specialist for the South Plainfield school district. She also enjoys acting and has participated in several workshops. She was in a performance of "Rose Tatoo" at Entertainers Repertory Theater in Bridgewater, N.J., in the spring. She was to spend summer 1993 at Eagle Lake in the Poconos. She writes that in the fall of 1992, she visited Virginia Mancini in West Palm Beach, Fla. Virginia is retired from teaching and having a wonderful time enjoying what she wants to do.

Ashley Kay Perry Saine Nuckols writes from Nuckols Inc. that she has a genealogy office (literary agency) in Tazewell, Va., her hometown, called "Family Roots." She enjoys doing family history research for people all over the United States and works with those wishing to have some genealogy manuscripts published. Her son, Mark Lindsey Nuckols, has been on Wall Street working in municipal bonds, and has recently moved to Philadelphia. Younger son, Michael Jay Randolph Nuckols, is in Bradenton, Fla., attending college. Ashley writes that she has many interests, including travel.

Carol Young Godin is still in the Los Angeles suburbs of Woodland Hills with Stuart, her husband of 30 years, and their four large dogs. Now that the children are grown, they can enjoy world travel. Her son, Michael, will be at the Medical College of Virginia as director of facial, plastic, and reconstructive surgery in the Department of Otolaryngology beginning August 1993. Michael's wife, Katherine, is a Richmond native, so they are looking forward to being here. Carol is looking forward to the opportunity to visit Richmond. I hope to see her. Her daughter, Debra, practices business law in Dallas. She and her husband have a 2-year-old daughter, Nicole.

Barbara Timmons Dempsey, who lives in Hartwood, Va., retired in 1991 after 29 years of teaching school. Her husband, Steve, retired in 1992, and they are enjoying their new-found freedom. They look forward to becoming grandparents in July 1993.

Sallie Hairston Bullock writes from Atlanta, Ga., that her oldest daughter, Karen Louise Shoffner, received her medical degree at Emory and is in residency. Her husband, John, is also a physician, and they plan careers as Emory Hospital staff. Her younger daughter, Diana, stopped ballet with the Atlanta Ballet to work for Proctor & Gamble after obtaining her Georgia Tech I.M. degree. Sallie has been farming by long-distance telephone since her 1990 car wreck back injury. She had planned to be back in Virginia by now, but Oak Hill, which was her ancestral home, was burned on May 29, 1988. She also writes that she still misses her brother, Sam, who died in 1981 from a heart attack.

Susan Ayers Warters writes that she and Bob moved to Houston in 1977 when he retired after 20 years in the Navy. He is with Brown and Root, and she teaches private piano lessons. Their daughter, Anne, is married and has two girls. Her son, David, completes his anesthesiology residency at the University of Texas in Houston in June 1993 and will remain on the staff of the medical school. She writes that it is wonderful to have the whole family nearby, and that they are actively involved with sailboat racing and cruising. She also writes that she had a wonderful visit with Betty Marshall Whitlock and Bennett last summer and enjoyed a quick tour of the MWC campus.

Otelia "Tillie" Westbrook Harris writes that she and her husband, Allen, are both retired and enjoy golfing, traveling, and taking it easy. They have had great trips to Arizona and Florida, and the next is Colorado in the summer of 1993.

Charlene Parrotta Dahl writes that she is now a social worker in Westchester County with an office located in Dobbs Ferry, N.Y. Careers have been varied: from advertiser to homemaker to student to accountant to teacher. She indicates that she has been back to college many times. Her oldest son, Norman F. Dahl III, graduated from New York University School of Dentistry in June. The youngest son, Christian Dahl, graduated from college and now is doing well in marketing and sales. Charlene will celebrate her 30th wedding anniversary this year. She saw Nancy Johnson Edwards in July 1992, when Nancy was on a business trip to New York.

I have not seen Gretchen Lewis Harman since graduation of 1956. I did know John Harman graduated in my class (1960) from medical school. He is now a urologist in Burlington, N.C. Gretchen worked for American Tobacco Company in Richmond for several years after graduation from Mary Washington, and then she became a full-time homemaker and mother as they moved around. Her husband, John, served in Vietnam for a year. They have three children. The daughter, Laura, went to medical school in Chapel Hill, N.C., at the University of North Carolina and is finishing a residency in internal medicine. In July 1993, she will go into private practice in Durham, N.C. Scott Harman graduated from medical school at MCV in Richmond and will finish his psychiatry residency in June 1994 at Albert Einstein Hospital in Philadelphia. The younger daughter graduated from Elon College and is an accountant for a furniture manufacturer in High Point, N.C. Gretchen now works as a free-lance calligrapher and teaches both calligraphy and handmade greeting card construction at the local community college. Laura, her older daughter, has the first grandchild, who is now 9 months old, and Gretchen loves to be with him.

Betty Rand Coward, who spent her freshman year at Mary Washington, transferred to the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill to finish there. She still keeps up with Barbara Musselman Wyngarden and Jackie Wilkins Upp.

Elizabeth "Betty" Winstead Stiff went to Mary Washington for the first two years and then married William in 1954. William is a U.Va. graduate who is an engineer in construction management. They have three children: Karen Elizabeth Costello is the director of the Women's Resource Center at the University of Richmond; William Timothy and his wife, Sue Ann, are both veterinarians working in Newport News and have two daughters; Charles Latane is with OSHA and married to Page Harris, who is a Spanish teacher in West Point, Va.

As retirement approaches, Betty and Bill want to travel more and play more volleyball. They also are enjoying taking college classes together. She writes that she has kept up with Elizabeth "Boo" Rountree Duke since the first day of MWC. She is in Portsmouth, still teaching at Churchland High School. She has two grown children and has helped Betty raise her children.

I saw Nanalou West Sauder at the Jepson dinner at MWC in April 1993, a delightful occasion.

Carol Ault Cheape '55, who was at MWC for two years and finished at U.Va., continues to enjoy Hawaii with husband Douglas, her children and grandchildren. They have recently moved to another island and came back last year to Colorado to visit one of her children. She has enjoyed teaching.

Anne Saunders Addison Scott writes that in 1954 she married Grafion "Bud" Dulany Addison Jr., who designed Air Force bases worldwide, so they lived abroad a great deal. He was a consultant engineer in Vietnam. She has three children. Katherine Page, who attended MWC for two years and then graduated from Old Dominion University, is married to Michael Dixon. They have two children and live in Norfolk, Va. Her son, Grafion "Duke" Addison III, is married to Lenny Burch Duke. They have two children and live in Jacksonville, Fla. Her youngest, Thomas Fitzgerald, graduated from Flagler College and has been taking pictures all over the globe. In 1980, Anne's husband died of cancer, and she remarried in 1989 to Russell Cecil Scott of Richmond, Va. They travel a great deal. She had a house party on the Great Scott the summer of '91 and had guests including Nancy Zimmerman Craven, Connie Hook Felvey, Beth Poteet Pollard, Angie Walton Barksdale and Red Rosanelli Metzger. While visiting her son in Florida, she saw Turner Christian Richardson Harrison, who lives in Tampa.

Your agent moved her office, attended nephew Randy Robertson's graduation, moved him to Baltimore in August, and then went to the Homestead in August of '92 for a much-needed week of vacation. Little did I know that husband Bill was going to near occlude his left coronary and need emergency balloon dilation. There were some bleeding complications afterwards, but he is fine now. In November 1992, we went to Bermuda for a week and plan to go to the North Cape in July 1993. I continue to teach and see patients at the Medical College of Virginia in pediatrics and pediatric cardiology.

When I arrived at MWC on June 4 for our 35th class reunion, the weather was very warm. Within two hours, rain was coming down steadily and the temperature dropped considerably. By Saturday morning the rain had stopped, the sun was out, and the campus was green and beautiful.

At the reunion registration desk in Ball Circle, I met Patricia "Pat" Ellis Archer, who was looking for Edith "Toots" Massie Warner. They were going to stay in one of the dorms, but they would be at the hospitality room at the Hampton Inn later.

Elinor Runge Vitek, Reunion coordinator, Martha Kimball Hearn and Betsy Webster Stanford coordinated the arrangements for the Class of '58 at the Hampton Inn.

I located Carol Lehmann, Elizabeth "Betty" Gould Storms and her husband, Bob, and we got ourselves organized to attend the Brompton Welcome, which had been moved to the tent in Ball Circle. With the rain coming down and only one umbrella, we decided to return to the inn. Later I heard that those who attended the reception at the tent had a good time.

The Southwestern dinner at Seacobeck was next on the agenda. Sandra Harman Lonano was spotted eating ribs. She had been looking for '58 classmates and the hospitality room. Later that evening, the hospitality room was a scene of much activity. Frances "Fran" Karins Updike, Carol Ann Lassalle McMahon, Edith "Toots" Massie Warner, Patricia "Pat" Ellis Archer, Betsy Webster Stanford, Margaret "Jerry" Sample Stocks, Elinor Runge Vitek and Martha Kimball Hearn were on their way to the Twilight Tour of Belmont. After the tour, Carol, Betty, Bob and I joined them at Merriman's Restaurant, where we enjoyed good food, conversation and very rich desserts.

Events scheduled for Saturday included lectures, guided campus tours and, of course, shopping in the campus bookstore in Lee Hall. A total of 24 classmates assembled on the lawn at Fountain Square for the picnic luncheon. We came from Virginia, Florida, Pennsylvania, North Carolina, South Carolina, Michigan, New Jersey, Kansas, Maryland, Louisiana and Massachusetts. Later we gathered on the steps of Monroe Hall for the official class pictures. Cameras were kept busy throughout the day. Our class party was held, after lunch, in the Woodard Campus Center, where we sat in a large circle, shared events of the past five years, and made plans for 1998. We expressed our appreciation to Elinor Runge Vitek, Reunion coordinator, for all the work getting us together and the fun we were having. Elinor was elected to head our 1998 reunion.

Elizabeth "Betty" Beckham Gentry lives in Triangle, Va., with her husband, William, whom she married "many" years ago. They have two sons, and she says she "loves her life." She invited us to visit her.

Jane Crenshaw Avera-Baugh returned to Virginia five years ago and is living in McLean with husband Dick and her 20-year-old daughter, who is attending Va. Tech. Jane's three older children live in Northern California. Retirement and travel is her goal.

Managing and buying for the Kenmore Museum keeps Mary Elizabeth Hendrickson Greenup busy. She has lived in Fredericksburg with husband Bill and two children since 1961.

Eugenia Hurt Smallwood lives in Roanoke and teaches music in a private school. She took time off from the school's spring program to attend the reunion. Genie and husband Thomas have a married daughter who lives in Greensboro, N.C. Their son works in Tyson's Corner.

We learned a lot about the care of sheep from Fran Karins Updike, who raises them and uses the fleece for handspinning and weaving. Fran is busy painting in oils and watercolors in addition to teaching studio art in the York County Day School. Three of Fran and Furman's children are married. Their youngest son has graduated from college and is having fun working his way through Europe and the Mediterranean.

Edith "Toots" Massie Warner took time off from her second-grade class to attend the reunion. Toots, a widow, is looking forward to retirement in four years. Her son is an assistant women's coach at Radford College, and her daughter, who lives near Toots, is expecting her fourth child in October.

A cocktail/Perrier party was planned later in the day at the home of Martha Kimble Hearn, and Martha kept us laughing as she provided details about directions to the new condo that she and Pete have moved into. The building was formerly a pants factory. Their son and daughter are married, and Martha now has four grandchildren.

Carol Lehmann has been busy as chairman of the annual antique show for the College Club of Ridgewood, N.J. Carol, Betty and I caught up on each other's activities for the past five years as Bob drove us around Fredericksburg.

Katherine Oliver sent her best via Betsy Smith LeFever, who had flown from Tampa, Fla., to Greensboro, N.C., to drive to MWC with Ann Scott Howlett. Betsy, who lives 20 miles north of Tampa, enjoys traveling. She announced that she "has no children and no grandchildren." Ann is a training coordinator at Wal-Mart. Her two children live in N.C. While others discussed their accomplishments with hobbies and crafts, Ann reported that she still has the one argyle sock that she started as a freshman and never finished.

Working with the Fairfax County Economic Development Authority is an interesting and exciting job for Patricia "Pat" Ellis Archer. Pat has received an M.A. degree in this field. She is enjoying her first grandchild.

Elizabeth "Betty" Gould Storms was recognized for having traveled the greatest distance to the reunion (from Leavenworth, Kan.) She works in utilization review and quality assurance as an accredited record technician at the V.A. hospital. Bob and Betty met at a dance at MWC in 1957 and married the same year. They have four grandchildren with another one on the way in October. Betty will visit her daughter, Susan, in October. Their son, Robert, has a Ph.D. in microbiology and works in Chapel Hill, N.C. They had just visited with him prior to traveling to MWC.

Carol Ann Lassalle McMahon, one of five from Louisiana to attend MWC in 1954, was given the "Lost Treasure Award — an original decal — MWC of U.Va." She had not been back for 37 years. Carol has five grandchildren, whom she enjoys. She says she will be back for the 40th reunion. Carol, Fran and Jerry Stocks were to visit Mary McCardell Furr in Virginia Beach before returning to their respective homes.

Kay Martin Britto, whose husband has retired, continues to work as a children's librarian in Arlington County. She said that Anne dePorry McGarth, a widow, has moved to N.J. Anne is currently touring Europe and visiting with her daughter and son-in-law, who live in England.

Fond memories of Framar Hall were recalled by Ruthie Ridge Griggs. Her daughter accompanied her to the reunion and tolerated — with good humor — all our stories. Ruthie, a retired history teacher, now teaches night school once a week to high school dropouts. She had a great time getting together with everyone.

Elinor Runge Vitek discussed scuba diving in the waters near Turkey with Bob Storms, who had been stationed in Turkey in the early 1970s. Elinor is certified for scuba diving and has been to some interesting places with her husband, Brantley. Their son, Brandt, is a resident in orthopedics, and their daughter, Vicki, is married and lives in Aspen. When Elinor is not managing her husband's office, she is busy riding, hiking, diving, etc., yet she still found time to be our reunion coordinator for 1993 and accepted the job again for 1998.

Margaret "Jerry" Sample Stocks, an international needlework teacher and duplicate stitch and flag pattern designer, recalled when she received her first sewing machine, and said she hasn't stopped sewing. Jerry was featured on the front cover and also had a feature story in two Sew Beautiful magazines. Jerry, her daughter, and two granddaughters model designs created by Jerry. She showed us one of the beautiful sweaters that she had designed. Jerry has traveled in the USA and Australia teaching classes in needlework and smocking. Husband Raymond keeps busy with selling "Glad Rags and Decorative Flags," which are Jerry's designs.

Another artist in our class is Nancy Schultz Keyser, who began painting in watercolors 10 years ago. She had her first show at the University Club in D.C. in 1993. Her husband, Henry, retired five years ago, and he keeps busy with golf and gardening. They have three sons, and the youngest is living with them. Nancy was going straight to her vacation home in Wisconsin from the reunion, where she will stay until Labor Day.

Nancy Snook Miller lives in Richmond with husband Jack. They have two children, Becca and Steve. She enjoys her volunteer work at the Women's Resource Center, University of Richmond. Nancy lived in Framar Hall when she attended MWC. She keeps in touch with Susanne Hough Connelly, who lives in Hilton, N.Y., with husband James. Susanne is dealing with a serious illness, and we send her our very best wishes.

Retirement from the Rosewood Center, a residential center for the developmentally disabled, has allowed Tempe Thomason to refocus her social work career and become a part-time consultant with a home health agency. Benefits from retirement include getting to sleep late and spending time on special interests.

Sandra Harman Lonano lives in Greensboro, N.C., where she works as office manager for husband Frank, an insurance broker and registered investment adviser. When she returns home she will have to learn how to program the new computers that have been recently installed. Their grandchildren include their daughter's son and their son's daughter. Their youngest son is in the movie production business, and one of the shows he works on is "Matlock." Late Saturday evening, Sandra learned that a storm had come through Lynchburg and damaged a home belonging to her parents, so she planned to leave early on Sunday.

Elizabeth "Betsy" Webster Stanford lives in Arlington with husband Roy, a dentist. She is an associate real estate broker in Alexandria. Her son, James, has two children, and her daughter, Susan, works and lives in NYC. When not working, Betsy enjoys travel, photography and speed-walking. Betsy helped plan the reunion weekend.

Someone located Pattie Simmons, who is a professor of lighting design at Florida State University, through a computer network. Pattie did respond to the MWC questionnaire. She has been busy traveling in the USA and Australia observing theaters, designing ballet programs and lighting design.

Cynthia "Cyndi" West Benney and Lucinda "Lucy" West Preston volunteered to be class agents for the next five years. Details to follow. Cyndi is a lab supervisor/business manager for Endocrine Research & Clinical Labs, Mass. General Hospital, Boston. Husband Neil and Cyndi enjoy their 32-foot sailboat. Cyndi and Ruth McCulloch Sigler both live in Marblehead, Mass.

Lucinda "Lucy" West Preston remarried in January 1991 and moved to the Baltimore, Md., area. Husband Woody is an attorney. Lucy's son, Jack, is in the export business in Taiwan; Peyton, her daughter, lives in Annapolis; and son Mark began a five-year residency in general surgery at the Jefferson Hospital in Philadelphia. If you visit Baltimore, you might find Lucy at Gayula in the village of Cross Keys. She may also be found on the golf course or working on the Special Projects Committee of the Chesapeake Bay.

Valeria Deakin Gibbons of Coronado, Calif., sent greetings, and Louise Kerfoot Payne, Montville, N.J., sent a note saying "hello" to the group. Fran Updike has been in touch with Isabel Gill Shillinglaw of Pebble Beach, Calif., and Patricia Harmon Ekwell, who also lives in Calif.

Time passed quickly, and we prepared for the party at Martha Hearn's home. More classmates arrived for the party. I met Anne Conner Hall in the parking lot. She had traveled from Warrenton for the evening. Jean Lee Anderson Chapman came from Richmond. We had not seen each other since the 10th reunion. She said Elaine Downing Hawpe, who has been teaching English to Chinese students at a university in the People's Republic of China, was due back in the USA sometime soon.

We had a wonderful time roaming through Martha's two-level condo, threatening to move in, taking pictures and eating the delicious food. A special thanks to Martha for her gracious hospitality.

After dinner at a local restaurant, the Grapevine, we regrouped at the hospitality room and continued to reminisce and catch up on current news. On Sunday morning we said our goodbyes and promised to meet again in 1998.

I have enjoyed being the class agent for the past five years, but I could not have done it without your support. My goal was to have an article in MWC Today by each deadline, and when responses to the questionnaires would start coming in, I would breathe a sigh of relief and start typing. Responses after the deadline would be used for the next issue. Your cards, letters and telephone calls were most appreciated.

Now "the pen" is passed to Lucy West Preston and Cynthia West Benney. For your convenience, Lucy asks that all correspondence be sent to her at: 2 Nearfield Road, Lutherville, MD 21093 (410)296-3316.

My thanks to you all. Be seeing you in 1998.

Postcard from Carmen Culpeper Chappell! Vacationing for a week in San Francisco. Spent the previous month (April) in Montana. Is planning a get-together with Joan Stahlhut Good in Baltimore in the fall.

Julie Coates Littlefield and Mo continue their traveling for Sigma Nu. They recently went to Florida and Texas. The most important news, however, is — dah, dah! Grandmother! Bess and Mike are the proud parents of Jack Henry Edwards, born on February 9. All is well! They will be moving to Arlington in the future. Scott is roosting with Julie and Mo for awhile and contemplating future plans. Julie continues to edit The Delta and hopes to be at our 35th next year. She received a little news from Priscilla Brown Wardlaw, who has her sons at home now, too.

Irene Piscopo Rodgers sends the news that Marianne Caranno Raphaely's son, Chris, had married. That makes two lawyers in the family. Irene travels all over everywhere, as usual. She and Don are planning a trip to Alaska in June.

Not much news — I know I owe letters, and I have been answering — hope to be caught up on all of them soon. Made it through the year without Virginia, but I didn't like it! She had a good first year and is looking forward to next fall. She will be in an apartment since there were roomie problems. She keeps telling me how much cheaper it will be! Ho, ho! I know when I'm being conned! Take care.

Kelly Cherry has been named Evjue-Bascom Professor in the Humanities at the University of Wisconsin, Madison. Her new book of poems, God's Loud Hand, has been published by Louisiana State University Press, and Benjamin John, a poem sequence, has been published by March Street Press in N.C.

Mary Hatcher is retired from the Social Services Administration and is enjoying her home in Wilmington, N.C. That hasn't stopped her from traveling, however. In June she visited her sophomore roomie, Kathy Byorum Crane, in Texas, and she's planning a trip to New Zealand in the fall. She and her senior year roommate, Betsey-Ellen Hueston Hansen, visit back and forth regularly. Betsey lives in Stafford, Va., and is the assistant in the MWC Writing Center. If any of you are visiting the campus, drop by Trinkle 107-A and say hello. She has also been busy working toward her master's degree.

Received a note from Tina Hutcheson Olson in which she wrote that she got a "championship" on her English Mastiff dog — over 3000 entries. She handled everything herself. Congratulations, Tina!

Garnette Lewis Doggett and her husband,

Class of 1963

Billy, are the proud grandparents of Wiley Wilhelm Jr., born Nov. 19, 1992, to their daughter, Annette. Their son, William, earned his business degree in December, and planned to marry in June. Billy brings Garnette riding in an old Model A that he put together — they also do parades in it. Both stay very active in church work, and Garnette goes to retreats and crusades.

Noni Getchell Hogwood and husband Don had us as their guests at the Shriners Acca Temple here in Richmond. It was open house and very interesting. The Shriners have lots of fun but with the serious purpose of helping crippled children and the burned and handicapped. My husband, Frank, now a Mason, hopes to become a Shriner before too long. He took early retirement in September 1992 and absolutely loves the job he has now of vending children's books. Frank and I had dinner and a delightful time with Edith Gilbert Smith and husband Vince. "E" stays busy in Washington getting legislation passed.

Betsy Carper Cole wrote me that she lost her mother to cancer in November 1992. She also wrote that they have a grandson, William Cutler Cole IV, born August 26, 1992. His birth makes their trips to Atlanta very special. Betsy visits second and third-graders with her book presentations — keep writing those wonderful children's stories, Betsy!

Being a middle school science teacher, I'm interested in hearing from Diana Copple Smith with information on her "state of the art" middle school in Guilford County, N.C.

Our daughter, Mary Glenn, is involved in an office technology degree program. Computers are her thing — but not mine!

Before my mother-in-law and I start our driving trip to upstate N.Y. this summer, I'm going to be evaluated for a hearing aid. Problems started when I got the measles at college!

Maggie Walker Mac Allister comes to Richmond from time to time for horse shows. I'm waiting to hear the latest from you, Maggie.

Our Varina is a small but interesting community. Country singer and sausage king Jimmy Dean lives down the road and occasionally performs at the country store. I feel very fortunate to belong to the Varina Forum. We have timely topics such as "The Glass Ceiling" and "Women Starting a Small Business." Since most of us are over 50, we like the informal atmosphere — eating and having fun with each other — no more dues and no more agendas!

The Class of '62 is such a great group — do send in your interesting news!

The countdown is upon us. It's less than a year until we'll all meet again in Fredericksburg to lie and tell one another how great we all look. No kidding, start planning now. Call your room/suitemates and friends to gather your group together so we can have the rockingest 30th reunion ever witnessed in our old college town. And I won't take "no" for an answer! Now, for all the news...

Christmas brought a few cards and much appreciated news from some of our classmates. (Write yourself a big fat note now to put me on your list for this year.) Carolyn Mitchell Macksoud and husband Ken's daughter, Kara, has been college-shopping and may even be an MWC freshman by now. Carolyn is back at work, part time, in a program called "Parents as Teachers." With training, she became a certified parent educator and works with parents of children 0-3. She reports she is enjoying the work.

Teacher Kathryn "Kak" Austin Keck is participating with a group from her school in a partnership with the National Humanities Institute in the Research Triangle, N.C., area. Her group submitted a proposal and was selected for the project. She enjoys it because it's school without the exams, papers and school "work." They read and discuss. Sounds like the kind of school we'd all like, Kak.

Another voice out of the past appeared in my mailbox at Christmas, too. Anne Raymond Hufnagel and husband Fred have a daughter who graduated from JMU with a major in French and international business. Their son is a sophomore in architecture at U.Va. Both are Dean's List students. After teaching for three years in Fairfax and Fauquier counties, Anne started her own business in 1978. She is a sign painter, creating the designs on a computer. Most of the signs are used for conferences and expositions. Fred just retired from his business of trade show management. Anne says they will return to the family farm in Rappahannock County.

Anne Liady Lynch sends news that two of her three daughters are at the University of Arizona. One is starting her fourth year in architecture, and the other is studying acting/directing. Their "baby" is a sixth-grader. Anne went back to work as the executive director of the Community Council, a local non-profit agency affiliated with the United Way. Anne says it's much like running a small business. Sue Daughtridge Guthrie is back from Paris, France, and commuting from Picayune, Miss., to New Orleans for her job with IBM. Her Christmas card was a picture of the family cow. Leave it to Sue!

Another first-time writer, Peggy O'Bier Deihl, sent news. She and husband Jimmy live in Reedville, Va. Peggy retired from elementary school teaching after 26 years and was presented with a brass apple for her devoted service. This, along with two banquets, gave Peggy a grand send-off. Now, she enjoys writing poetry and has had several of her poems published by a poetry forum. Her husband is a commercial fishing boat captain for Zapata-Haynie. They have two daughters, Shauna, 23, who teaches elementary art, and Sheila, 20, a senior at MWC. Peggy saw Judy Akers Wilson when both were taking daughters to Ferrum. (Judy, where are you?)

Barbara Kellam Latham and her husband, Roger, have returned to the U.S. after living in Switzerland for five years. They are returning to Wilmington, Del., to their previous home. Daughter Sara graduated from MWC; Kate from William and Mary. After all the visitors Barbara and her family have had in Switzerland over the past five years, they plan to visit all those folks right here in the U.S. So keep the porch lights on!

Bronnie Jones Polk and I had a terrific visit in D.C. at the American Dietetic Association convention. Bronnie is a consultant dieti-tian and husband Bob is retired from the Air Force. Their daughter is in college in Colorado, and their son is at VMI. We flapped our gums for two hours straight, hardly stopping to take a breath. It was great. (She looks just the same.) Betty Jennings Peterson was in Atlanta and left a message on my answering machine. Next time, Betty (and anyone else who calls), leave a number so that I can call you back.

Judith Finger Bradley sends word from the D.C. area (she lives in Bethesda) that she'd like to stir up some activity in the area and get those in our class to Fredericksburg for our reunion. You can write Judy at 4519 Chestnut St., Bethesda, MD 20814.

As for us, we sold our house and moved to a rental high-rise temporarily. (We may never leave.) We love the life-style (e.g., no yard, no maintenance, etc.). This won't last because we have to buy another "something" within two years or Uncle Sam wants lots of money, so my present address will change. We moved early January, so if you didn't hear from me at Christmas, I (my husband was not in sight) was packing. For three weeks in May and June a Houston friend and I took a terrific trip to Italy. We left the men at home this time. My latest part-time job is as a media escort. (I have to be careful to say media when I tell someone this because I told someone I was an "escort" and got all kinds of interesting looks.) I schlepp traveling authors around Atlanta when they are here on their book tours.

I hope the postcard you received from me will inspire you to write. Note my phone number, (404)237-6346, and latest address. And here's another reminder that our reunion is minutes away. (Carolyn and Kak, we're going, but we're not staying in the dorm this time! Dee Dee, that includes you, too.)

Can't wait to see you, girls.

Donna Lingo Rauch has made it back alive from another trip to Spain with 12 sophomore and junior Spanish students. Having one adult for every two students may have helped. They were gone from May 18-25 and visited Madrid, Toledo, Cordoba and Sevilla to name a few. Brave soul, Donna. And what is with this nickname of "Disco Donna"? Her daughter, Nicole, will be a junior at MWC in the fall, and Eric William is in the management training program for Golden Corral.

Lisa Corder Wharton and husband David are finally in their new home as of March 20. They're still unpacking and hanging pictures, etc. Her son, Steuart, came back in January from his assignment in and around Scotland and is awaiting the next one. Suzannah is living in Manhattan and loving NYC. She's in sales with Frieden Neo Post (hope I have that right), covering five boroughs. Lisa, hope we can get together this summer.

I don't know if the fact that we're all approaching or already 50 years old is affecting the lack of mail concerning class news or what, but please take pen in hand or call. We need to hear from some other classmates.

Class of 1968

Add me to your Christmas card list...anything for some fresh faces!

Greetings again from beautiful Northern Virginia. I am happy to report that the mail is beginning to trickle in. Since there are only two or three alumni publication dates each year, the news you send me is not immediately processed, but it is deeply appreciated and is forwarded to the Alumni Association at the appropriate times. So please write whenever the mood (or muse) strikes you! With my busy teaching, music and family schedules, I have not made the phone calls I intended, but I am definitely thinking of many of you who have yet to be contacted.

My summer has included a two-week crash course in Norfolk with the Virginia Network of Technology for leadership training in the use of graphic calculators and computers in the mathematics classroom. I expect to be presenting some in-services and workshops to other teachers of mathematics as a result of this training, and will probably meet some of you there. Incidentally, Ellen Smith Hook '69, one of the instructors of this VANT program, is an MWC graduate. Although we were not classmates, we still shared many reminiscences of the math department.

Susana Roth Nurin wrote that she is still department head of a local foreign language department after five years. She misses the college teaching she did part time for 14 years, but is happily employed full time now. Her daughter, Tamara, is a student at Tufts University; son Justin is just beginning high school and is a talented trumpeter. Husband Larry is still an active periodontist in Annapolis and, of course, they enjoy boating as one of their favorite pastimes.

Carolyn Perry Grow wrote that she and husband Dave are considering retirement and a second career with a move to Charlottesville. After 25 years in upstate New York they are ready for warmer climes and have compromised on Virginia since Dave is a Northern Pennsylvania native. They have purchased land in a golf/equestrian development called Glenmore. Carolyn would love to have MWC visitors and has extended a cordial invitation to all. Mary Kay Rowell Horner, here is your new golf partner, but you'll have to go to Charlottesville to play. Carolyn is looking forward to participating in or organizing MWC activities throughout the state to put her corporate management experience to good use again.

Cathe Cantwell Luria mailed me a fascinating account of her postgraduate activities, which are too numerous to relate in full. After receiving her M.S. in nursing, she worked in Rochester, N.Y., at the University of Kentucky, in Kotzebue, Alaska, and Gig Harbor, Wash. She then started a private practice and has distinguished herself nationally with her prescriptive authority and a nurse-of-the-year award. Cathe works with husband Eric in a family practice, and the two of them, along with daughter Alexandra, are very active in the Puget Sound area.

Cathe also related that Donna Clark Edwards is a pharmacist in Cincinnati, Ohio. Donna is married and has two grown children. Cathe is also in contact with Nancy Derrick Denslow, Ph.D., who does research at the University of Florida, Gainesville. They met at SeaTac airport in Seattle three years ago while Nancy was attending a meeting, and have kept in touch since then.

Speaking of keeping in touch, Cathe and I are both wondering about the rest of our second-floor Virginia pals, especially Linda Bauserman and Katie Green Barrett. Linda, are you still playing the viola? Katie, do you use your German much any more?

I'm still in close touch with Sandy Hutchison Hoybach, who proudly announces that son Ricky is entering graduate business school this fall after participating in James Madison University's prospective business-development tour of Vietnam. Also I'm in close touch with Susan Hanes Orrison, who has now been teaching long enough to begin thinking seriously about retirement. Several members of our Chantilly math department are the same age, and retirement has become a frequent discussion topic among us. Sue also mentioned that Greg Sheehan Arthur has kept in touch. Now that Greg's daughters are no longer at home (one is a graphic artist in Northern Virginia and the other is a student at William and Mary), Greg has acquired two new dogs. Both Sue and Greg are dog lovers.

It's great hearing from you and being able to pass the news along through this publication. I promise to place some calls soon and make more contacts. Meanwhile, keep those cards and letters coming!

I've tried for days to put our 25th reunion weekend into words, but I can't. If you were there, you already know how special it was; if you weren't, we really missed you! As Pam Tompkins Huggins said, "I'm sorry I waited this long to see the folks who were such a special part of a special time in my life. I was really overwhelmed by how it felt to look into the faces of these dear friends — a few more "lines," maybe a few more pounds, but the same hearts — it felt great!" It was a time to add new memories to the old; to renew past friendships and form new ones.

A few highlights for me included the Friday night reception under the tent in Ball Circle in the pouring rain; dinner in Seacobeck so we could complain about the food; the beautiful twilight tour of Belmont; the Class of '68 party at Stevie Danahy Shelhorse's bookstore in historic downtown Fredericksburg (thanks again, Stevie!); the Saturday picnic; the class picture, when we actually all stopped talking for two seconds; the class party Saturday afternoon, complete with old scrapbooks and yearbooks; the banquet; dancing to the oldies in the Eagle's Nest (will we ever get used to the idea of a pub on campus?); fulfilling Pam Huggins' 25-year wish by crowning her the real last May Queen of Mary Washington College; buying souvenirs at the College bookstore; trying to figure out how we actually lived in those dorms (while drinking wine in Ball and feeling strange even after all these years)...but most of all, the members of the Class of '68. I feel truly blessed and honored to be able to say that these fabulous women are my friends. We are already making plans for our 30th reunion, so put June 1998 on your calendar now and don't let anything stop you from being there!

On to the class news — I finally have a lot! I'll include as much as possible now and continue in the next issue.

Marge Arnsdorff has been the science coordinator for Savannah County Day School for eight years. She has also coordinated science departments in Florida and Kentucky, taught in Central America, and worked on her master's degree at the University of South Florida and Kentucky. Marge is the single parent of a 12-year-old son, Chris, who's involved in soccer, basketball and tennis, and they have traveled to Puerto Rico, Yellowstone, Colorado, Death Valley, Germany and Austria, as Marge earned summer graduate credits.

Mary "Ashe" Ashelford lives in Ansonia, Conn., where she is a computer systems analyst for Uniroyal Chemical Co. She loves her job and has been with the same company for 23 years. Her "best recent deal" was a three-week trip to Antarctica, which she highly recommends — lots of beautiful scenery, ice, penguins, whales, etc. She is still good friends with her old roomie, Linda Hall Palmer. Ashe said that Lynn Belcher Fox hounded her unmercifully to attend the reunion, so she has graciously volunteered to unmercifully hound a no-show for the 25th to come to the 30th! Lynn lives in Dallas Center, Iowa, (get out your atlas) with her husband, Jim, son Ryan, 14, daughter Kathryn, 10, and Penny, the cat. She is currently a professional attender of junior high and elementary school athletic events and concerts!

Judy Bennett Warme works as a staff developer for Prince William County schools. "After 16 years of middle-schoolers, even 'burned out' teachers are a nice change!" Judy lives in Woodbridge, Va., and has three children: a son, 22, who is involved in "upper-level home maintenance" (he's a roofer!); a daughter, 19, in college majoring in "the beach," and a daughter, 10, a wonderful redhead.

Susan Bottimore Martin resides in Hopewell, Va., and has been married for 25 years to an RMC graduate. They have two boys, ages 20 and 14. Susan has worked as a legal secretary/office manager for the past 10 years and is on the library board. The Martins moved to a new house last year and are busy fixing it up.

Jane Bradley is employed as the deputy general counsel and assistant U.S. trade representative for the Executive Office of the President of the U.S. She received her M.A. in government in 1971 at GWU and completed an independent study of law in 1976. Her husband, Richard Hovey, is an engineer for Digital Equipment Corp.

Kathy Bruneske is currently a program director for the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA) Information Center and Regulatory Docket at the Environmental Protection Agency. She still works for Labat-Anderson Inc. She earned her M.A.L.S. from the University of Wisconsin-Madison in 1969, CAS in environmental information from the University of Denver in 1980, and a post-master's certificate in health sciences information from Catholic University in 1985. When she's not working at her job with the long title, Kathy sings in the church choir, hikes, and enjoys counted cross-stitch. Last November she bought her first house and is busy decorating it.

Susan Burho McNeil is an educational book reviewer for Prentice-Hall Inc., from whom she won a VCR! She continues to teach ESL and public speaking at VPI & SU, and recently enjoyed trips to Atlanta and New Orleans.

Georgia Carroll Dinsmore has been married for 25 years and has three children: Elizabeth, 23, who's an English teacher; John, 21, a senior at JMU, who plays the drums in a band called the Fried Moose; and Anne, 10, a fifth-grader. Georgia lives in Virginia Beach, where she is an elementary school teacher, and her husband is a lawyer. Linda Clement Barnes also lives in Virginia Beach. Her daughter, Jennifer, will be attending MWC in the fall, and daughter Betsy is in the eighth grade.

Stevie Danahy Shelhorse opened Main Street Books in historic Fredericksburg with a partner in 1987. It is an independent bookstore specializing in regional titles, literature, short story collections, mysteries, gardening and cooking. She also teaches p.e. at a local middle school, and enjoys gardening, reading and hiking in her spare (?) time. Stevie earned her master's in 1982 with an emphasis in sports medicine. Daughter Mary Sledd just graduated from college with a B.S. in biology, and son James is a sophomore at UNCG. Stevie is single again after 21 years and feels very happy and peaceful.

Jean Eley Thompson lives in Portsmouth and is guidance director at Western Branch Middle School. She received her M.S. in 1972 from Old Dominion University. Her husband, Jim, is the owner of Radio Works Inc., and they have one son, Jamie, 12, who's active in Boy Scouts. Jean sings contemporary Christian music with a group called "Pot of Gold" and is active in her church, counseling organizations, and Alpha Delta Kappa.

Molly Fornes Peery has found paid employment after 12 years of volunteering, and is now a senior analyst with a defense contractor supporting U.S. Navy missile and aircraft programs in Arlington, Va. She has two children: David graduated from William and Mary in 1991, and Jennifer is a junior at the University of Richmond. After a 22-year Army career, husband Skip is retired but working with the Army as a civilian. After Jennifer graduates from college, the Peerys hope to relocate out of the D.C. area, and Molly plans to concentrate on her hobbies of stained glass and refinishing furniture.

Linda Hall Palmer lives with her husband of 20 years, Charles, and their famous and spoiled cats, Hunter and King. (We understand that Mary Ellen Ashelford enjoys her second job as their nanny!) Linda has been with IBM since leaving school.

Reba Harnage Davis has been a "professional volunteer" for 16 years, and has recently begun to substitute teach and renew her teaching certificate. She is married to Gary, an attorney, and they have two sons, 16 and 13. She still loves traveling and water sports. She reports that Lynn Middaugh Cowen lives in Cleveland, where she has returned to teaching, earned two master's degrees, and has a daughter entering college in the fall.

Donna Harrison Lile works as a cataloguer for the Bowling Green, Ky., public library and has spent the last year adjusting to having her daughter 800 miles from home at Rice University in Houston. Judy Heartwell Hobaugh lives near Annapolis with her husband and 13-year-old daughter. She worked for 13 years as a computer systems analyst with the National Security Agency.

Judy Henley Beck is a nursery school director. Her daughter, Missy, is 22 and a grad student at Rutgers. Daniel, 17, is in high school. Her husband is a contractor. We are very proud of Judy, who served as president of MWC's national Alumni Association from 1990 to 1992! Murry Holland Franklin lives in Centreville, Va. Her husband, Steve, teaches in Fairfax, and they have two sons: a 20-year-old attending Longwood College and a 13-year-old in eighth grade.

Judith Jackson Jones spent five years after graduation teaching junior high school in Richmond. In 1970 she married J. Kipling Jones, VMI '67 and a graduate of MCV School of Medicine. They lived in Hawaii, San Francisco and Germany while in the military, then retired in Richmond, where Judith is the office manager for a medical practice.

Gail Jargowsky Farmer reports that she now has two sons in college and is looking forward to time to relax! She currently resides in Springfield, Va. Kris Krstulich Hoyer teaches creative writing at Keith Junior HS in Altoona, Pa. Her daughter is a senior at Penn State, majoring in music education. Shawn, 16, just got his driver's license and is active in football, baseball, skiing and music. ("Obviously," observed Kris, "this music stuff skips a generation!") Husband Ed works for Butterick, and they are already making exciting retirement plans to follow Shawn's college graduation.

Lucinda Long lives in W. Orange, N.J., with her son, Joseph, 8. For 12 years she was a professor of political science at Montclair State College. In 1984 she graduated from Rutgers Law School and began practicing with a large firm; in 1991 she became general counsel for a bank and recently was appointed its first female senior officer. She's active in her church, serving as president of the congregation, and enjoys singing, reading, and collecting antique clocks.

Belinda Lowenhaupt Collins earned her M.A. and Ph.D. in experimental psychology from U.Va. and has worked at the National Institute of Standards and Technology since 1974. She and husband Anthony have two cats. She reported that Barbara Bailey has been a public defender in Philadelphia for 22 years and has recently adopted her second daughter from India.

Peggy Massmann Howe continues to work in art, "focusing on figurative work based on the gesture of the body as a defining inspiration." She is still recovering from Hurricane Hugo, which destroyed her studio in Charleston, S.C., and 20 years of work. A new home and studio wing are in progress. Her work also continues, organizing a cooperative fine art printmaking facility for Charleston area artists. With husband Ray McClain, she rejoices in parenting Daniel, 8. Peggy reported that Fran Scavullo married last year; Betty Scott Pope and Sue Culp attended her wedding.

Sally Monroe Kelly lives in Palos Verdes Estates, Calif., with her husband of five years, Pete. "Yours, mine, and no ours, thank goodness! Four boys, four girls, ages 23 to 11. One college grad and two seniors in college, one at William and Mary. All different and lots of fun — most of the time!" Sally said she was amazed at how great we all looked at the reunion, and we definitely felt the same about her!

Carolyn Monti Turnbull and her husband live in Springfield, Va., with their 13-year-old son, Larry, a seventh-grader. She's busy being a room mother and school volunteer, and has been involved with crafts for many years. Ceramics and porcelain were her first loves, but she is now making original coats and vests. She modeled some of her "wearable art" at the reunion, and it is beautiful!

Maureen Murphy McCart is the payroll manager for Master Security in Towson, Md. Her husband, Daniel, is a v.p. for Md. National Bank. Maureen has recently gone back to school to earn her substance abuse counseling certificate. Daughter Maggie is 21 and just graduated from Lynchburg College; Kevin is 18 and a freshman at Dartmouth. A special "thank-you" to Maureen for all her hard work on our reunion booklet!

Kathleen Nagy Schabacker has enjoyed her 25 years of work at the U.S. Geological Survey. She and Dennis reside in Herndon, Va., and enjoy their dogs (which they always get from the humane society), family, friends, travel, home improvement projects, music and needlework. Kathy is an officer on the women's council at her church this year.

Janet Perry Titus is pleased to report that her daughter is a recent graduate of MWC, and her son will be an MWC freshman in the fall of 1993. She and her husband, Dick, work together for a trade association in Reston, Va. Janet commented that MWC is a lot different than it was when we were there!

Helaine Patterson is the director of the Office of Public Information for the Yale University School of Medicine. She received her M.B.A. in public affairs/journalism from American University in 1974. She is on the board of directors of the Connecticut Press Club and Eli Whitney Museum, and served as a delegate for People to People, traveling to Moscow, St. Petersburg, Budapest and Prague.

Bobbie Price Wallach is still associate professor of classical studies and director of graduate studies at the University of Missouri. She said she managed to avoid the chairmanship one more time, but had to pay for it by revising the department's graduate program. She's busy recruiting graduate students and planning a new course titled "Barbarians and Dangerous Women in Antiquity." (Don't you wish we could've taken that one at MWC?!) She's working on a book on Cicero and several articles on Ovid, and still filling her house with old books and cat collectibles.

Pat Rae Sullivan earned her master's in marketing and media relations from VCU in 1992, and is currently working as the relocation director of Virginia Properties. Her husband, Gary, is managing partner of Deloitte and Touche in Richmond, and they have two children, David, 20, and Charlotte, 15.

Frances Rodgers Bryant is still married to (25 years) and working for lawyer/husband Julian, whom she met on a blind date freshman year. Her son is in the Class of 1994 at William and Mary, and her daughter graduated from MWC in 1991 with a degree in historic preservation. She commented that as a parent, she feels that MWC is the best buy in the country for a good liberal arts education.

Dale Saunders Kalkofen is principal of Mary Munford Elementary School in Richmond. Her husband, Rick, is a parasitologist and retired director of research. Dale received her doctor of education degree from William and Mary in 1988, the same year that her son, Hans, now 5, was born!

Merrilyn Sawyer Dodson spent 14 years teaching math at various levels and has earned her M.Ed. with a concentration in math. She is now a training coordinator for Connecting Point, training people to use a variety of computer software. I asked her a lot of questions, as I am a computer idiot whose new job involves extensive word processing! She is a board member and on the editorial staff of the Peninsula Woman's Network, a group of professional women who support one another. She enjoys reading, exercise and needlepoint. She and her husband live in Newport News, and son Chris is a senior at Hampden-Sydney College.

Donna Sheehan Gladis is a full-time wife and mom, and a part-time staff coordinator for the American Managed Care Pharmacy Association. She is enjoying life, family and friends with husband Steve, an FBI agent, and their children — Kim, 19, a student at JMU, and Jessica, 11, a fifth-grader.

Pam Tompkins Huggins (the real last MWC May Queen!) lives in Staunton, Va., where her husband practices radiology, and she says, "Sure, I'd be happy to!" to too many requests for volunteers. Her oldest daughter, Sally, graduated from William and Mary in 1992 and will be married in December. Daughters Katie and Jamie are 14 and 11.

Anne Tooke has been in practice as a private psychiatric social worker for 11 years, and enjoys the freedom it allows her. She and her husband, Brooks Browne, travel a good deal to "obscure places"!

Laurie Walters Shepherd currently resides in Blacksburg, Va., and her husband, Richard, is an emergency room physician in Radford. She has worked off and on as a speech pathologist in-between having four children — two sons and two daughters, ages 18, 14, 12 and 8. She is working as an assistant preschool teacher and loving it.

Jacey Winders Richardson is a systems accountant for UNC at Chapel Hill. She was a foster parent for 10 years, caring for 15 mostly handicapped children between 1 and 17 years old, but retired when she went back to work. She still does volunteer work with a foster parents' association. She has five children, ages 13 to 21 (three in college) and a 1-year-old grandson. She enjoys quilting in her spare time.

Sandra Wolfe Rapuzzi and family have settled in the Dallas/Ft. Worth area after 23 years of traveling in the Air Force, "everywhere from New York to California." Son Michael, 22, graduated from college in 1992 and works and lives in Dallas. Daughter Linda is 14, and husband Dan works for American Airlines.

I moved to Baltimore in April and am working at the Center for Social Organization of Schools at The Johns Hopkins University. It's an education research center, and I'm involved in developing materials and working with schools around the U.S. which use our programs. My son, Todd, 22, is a senior at the University of Colorado majoring in film studies; Anne, 19, is a sophomore at Colorado State University and plans to teach elementary school.

If you did not attend the 25th reunion, please take a few minutes today to write me a note so that I can share your news and whereabouts with your classmates.

Anne Bates has been living in Vienna, Va., for the past 10 years. She works with the U.S. Geological Survey in Reston as a research chemist (coal and coal precursors). Personal traveling in the last few years has taken her to Egypt, Mexico, and as much as possible, to the American Southwest. Hobbies include hiking and archaeology.

I spoke with Eileen Cunningham on May 15, the day after she celebrated graduating with a master's in education. This degree started in 1970 at Georgia State, then ODU, U. of Houston, and U. of North Texas! She, her husband and three children (16, 14, 6) moved from Houston to Plano, Texas, five years ago. Eileen is one of two coaches for a team of six kids, including her eighth-grade son, for the Odyssey of the Mind program. This team is representing Texas in the national meet at the University of Maryland in June. The knowledge and communication skills these kids are developing sounds fantastic.

Eileen ran into Eva Maderspach Ring with her daughter, Susie, at a Houston preschool a few years ago.

Edie Morrison Herron has her own computer consulting company, developing software and providing training, and also teaches Jackie Sorenson's aerobic dancing. Her daughter, Debbie, 20, just finished her sophomore year at MWC, majoring in international affairs. Her son, David, is 17. Edie says that it looks like MWC has kept all the good things and added more. Living in the town of Penn State's major campus, she can really see the difference. Edie stays in touch with Martha Christian Santoro, Sherrill Hoofnagle Alexander and Pat Coradetti Averill.

Jan Sullivan Chalmers and husband Tony are enjoying their fast growing baby, Hannah. Jan is v.p. in human resources for American Express in Europe, Middle East and Africa, and lives near Brighton, England.

I've been traveling every week for the last year and a half with my consulting work on organization change. The work, clients, and frequent-flyer points are great, but the weekends at home are packed. My next major venture is setting up a program in which people can learn more about their intrinsic personal style, mental and emotional characteristics, decision-making style, learning patterns, etc.

Give me a call at 1-800-467-0467 with your news and whereabouts.

Greetings to the Class of 1972! Christmas mail brought notes and news from several members of our class. I received a card from and had a long telephone conversation with dear friend and former Mason suitemate, Susan Canada Van Horn. Susan and her family reside in Chesapeake, Va. For over 10 years, Susan has been the director of social services for the rapidly growing city of Chesapeake. Susan is married to her high school sweetheart, Jesse M. Van Horn, who is employed with Moon Engineering Company in Portsmouth, Va. Susan and Jesse are the parents of 16-year-old daughter, Kari, who is a junior at Great Bridge High School, where both Susan and Jesse graduated.

I also heard from former Madison suitemate, Terri Hall Alford. Terri is living with her family in Mountain View, Calif., where husband Mart is a squadron leader at Moffatt Airfield. Daughters Michelle, 19, and Mary Beth, 16, are enjoying California with their parents. Michelle attended Longwood College last year but is taking some time off to be with her family. The Alfords hope to be back in their home in Fairfax, Va., in a year or two.

No Christmas is ever complete without a note from my beloved roommate (all four years!), Freddie Hastings. Freddie introduced me to my husband-to-be by arranging a blind date in September 1969. She is also my daughter Lesley's godmother. Freddie is living in rural Zoar, Ohio, and commutes about 25 miles into Canton, where she is a dialysis-unit social worker. Freddie received her master's in social work from Ohio State University in Columbus in 1989. For those of you unfamiliar with Ohio geography, this means that Freddie drove three and a half hours one way to Columbus for classes two nights a week for five years. Freddie's husband, Phil Heagerty, is a counselor in private practice in Canton. They are enjoying having Freddie's niece, Tara Hastings, close to them as she attends Cleveland State University.

My former co-worker, Nancy Mahone Miller, sent me a nice newspaper article highlighting a recent trip she and her husband, C.J., made to Novisad, Serbia. Nancy and C.J., along with four other persons, presented a three-day business seminar to teach Serbians how our capitalist system works. The seminars were successful and attracted large crowds. The Millers and their friends shared their Christian faith with the Serbs and were well-received by a number of people attending the seminar. Nancy is an acquisitions librarian working in collection development at the Virginia Beach Public Library. C.J. is a sales manager for a software company. They reside in the Kempsville section of Virginia Beach.

In February I received two very nice notes from classmates responding to my plea for news of your activities. Eileen Keavy Smith and Rob, her husband of almost 21 years, have lived in Tallahassee since 1977. She is director of the Food & Nutrition Resource Center at the Florida Department of Education. Rob designs training programs for state government workers through the Florida Department of Management Services.

Ann Reynolds Kusnitz is living in Guatemala with her husband, Len, and their 4-year-old son, Joshua. Len is in the Foreign Service. The Kusnitz family will be transferred in 1995; they hope they'll be coming back to the States. Ann and fellow drama major, Linda Ryan, visited the MWC campus in August 1992 and were delighted with all the changes.

Class of 1973

My thanks to all of you who sent me news. Please let me hear from some more of you!

Our first bit of news is that Hubbard's address has changed. She moved into an old Richmond Fan District house in November, and after a few skirmishes with plumbers and carpenters, she is settling in...for life. She says she is never moving again!

Pam Smith McGahagin (a.k.a. "Wart") writes from Marietta, Ga., that since turning the big "40" last summer, she has been taking stock and trying to figure out what to do with the rest of her life. She is considering writing the Great American Novel or opening a postcard shop in Sanibel Island, Fla. Then again, she says there is the mortgage to consider (we can relate). Fantasies aside, Pam is still working as a writer/producer for WGNX-TV and is busy painting, wallpapering, and gardening with husband Mike, Sarah, 5, and Ian, 3, at their new home in the "burbs" of Atlanta.

On her way from Atlanta to New Jersey to see her mother, Pam visited with Pat Denton in Chapel Hill and then spent two days with Joan Darby in Stafford, Va. While visiting Joan, they toured the MWC campus, which Pam said was beautiful but deserted, since it was a holiday weekend. Pam made a "pilgrimage" back to the Klein Theater and found it refurbished (the Green Room isn't green anymore!), but otherwise just the same. Reassuringly so, she stated.

Pam reports that Joan had gotten a new job and that she stays very busy with her two kids, David, 11, and Christina, 7. Joan is also very involved with her church, scouts, ballet lessons, all that stuff! Pam said that it is always great to see everyone, and amazing how time just seems to pass us by!

An interesting letter arrived from Patricia Barnett Millard, who is living in Crystal, Minn. Pat writes that her position as manager of human resources was upgraded to include responsibility for training and development of staff. The company where she works has grown so much that it was necessary to bring some of the training in-house. Pat is once again reporting directly to the president of the company, something she says is efficient as well as rewarding.

Imagine escaping from the city to a small log cabin in the North Woods that has no running water, electricity or phones. Pat and husband Roger have purchased this restful retreat. (We're jealous!) Besides adding a calico cat to their household (the dog may have had problems adapting) and taking quilting classes (she felt like she was all thumbs), she's entertained by bears hanging out at the birdfeeder. With a name like Crystal, Minn., we should have known that life would be idyllic.

Sherry Mickel Parrish and husband John welcomed their first child, a daughter, Shannon Michelle Parrish, on February 20, 1992. Sherry says that Shannon is healthy, happy, and proudly wears a Mary Washington layette T-shirt! They are looking forward to Shannon graduating with the MWC Class of 2013!

Sherry is still working hard as the director of clinical operations for the Johns Hopkins Medical Services Corporation in Baltimore. In September 1992, Sherry attended the wedding of Carolyn Click to Jay Taylor. The wedding was wonderful and a mini-MWC reunion with Sherry and her husband, Susan Behling Coulter and husband Tom, Susan McPherson Klise and husband Michael, all celebrating the event together. Sherry and her family live in Ellicott City, Md., and they invite any old MWC friends to come by and see them.

Speaking of Susan Coulter, we also received a letter from her (appropriately written on MWC stationery), telling us that she and husband Tom have been married 11 years and have two daughters, Sarah, 10, and Maggie, 7. They live in West Windsor Township, N.J., where Susan works for Commercial Life Insurance Company in the corporate projects/corporate strategic planning area, and Tom is president of an actuarial consulting firm. Susan and daughter Sarah love to ride on Saturdays at a local stable.

Susan's reflection upon seeing old MWC friends at Carolyn's wedding: "For 40, we all looked great." (Thanks, we needed that!) On the way home from Weyer's Cave, Va., where the wedding was held, they swung through Berryville to visit Patsy Jacobs Kadel and her two children, Ryan, seventh grade, and David, fourth grade. Husband Paul was away, so they missed seeing him.

Hubbard received a long letter from Gail Gupton Owen '73, who lives on a farm in Buffalo Junction, Va., with husband Bill and children Carla, 7, and Jared, 5. Gail's letter was so entertaining that we'd like to share all of it, but you'll have to settle for the highlights. Gail says that she always has too many projects going on, including church and school. Other activities include being appointed to the county electoral board, which she said was very interesting in November with the presidential election. Most exciting, however, seemed to be her experiences "pulling" calves, which she learned how to do after they bought 19 new heifers and a bull in 1991. It is not, she emphasized, like the movie "City Slickers"!

Karen Sunnarborg called to say that she and son Matthew, 4, plan to be in Richmond in June and hope to get together with Patti and Hubbard. We hope to get Deb Ryan Howard down here from Northern Virginia, too. Patti had dinner and a wonderful time with Paula Wood Welch (she attended MWC for two years), her husband, Peter, and sons Adam, 11, and Chase, 8, in Charlottesville recently.

As you read these Class Notes, our 20th reunion will be less than a year away. Make plans to attend! We all need to get together and try to figure out how it could possibly have been 20 years ago that we ate in Seacobeck dining hall — and survived! Don't miss the opportunity for a great time and a lot of memories. It's good for the soul.

Hello, everyone! What a great reunion! Those of you who missed it missed a wonderful time. The weather was great, and the campus was beautiful. Start planning now for our 20th reunion in 1998! Jeff John has already offered his home for a class party. At this reunion, Myra Fleenor Foreman was selected as reunion coordinator, Cindy Reeves Mohr will be reunion booklet editor, and I will remain as your class agent. Keep that news coming in!

Mary Jane Ford Johnston attended the class party on Saturday. She was flashing pictures around of her two beautiful children. Evan is 3, and Emily is 9 months old. Mary Jane is a claims manager for Willis Corroon, an international insurance broker. She, Gene and the children live in Crownsville, Md. Kim Barlow Hoffman was there for the weekend. Kim is self-employed with Pine Hollow Nurseries in Fredericksburg.

Jeff and Kerry Devine John '84 brought their beautiful children for all to see. Their fourth, Garrett Peter, was born in May. Jeff and Kerry live on College Avenue, right across from the College. Myra Fleenor Foreman was there too. She is still living in Frederick, Md., with Steve and their two children, Brian and Martha Anne. Myra is a purchasing supervisor for MetPath, a clinical laboratory. She stays busy with the children's activities, volunteering in the community and at school. Ann Conway has been married for two years to Mike Wenger. They live in Harrisonburg with their four children. Ann is a pre-kindergarten teacher in Rockingham County. She enjoys skiing, camping and cross-stitch.

Annette Amendolia is working at American Service Center in Arlington. She moved back to Arlington in 1988 and is in the process of changing careers. Allen Scott Nichols is living in Snow Hill, Md., with her husband, Steve, Jamie, 4, and Michael, 2. Cindy Drury Clark and Jim have been married for five years. In 1991 she started her own gift basket service called Delightfully Yours. In March, one of her gift basket designs won national recognition at the International Gift Basket Convention in Crystal City.

Debra Akers Berry is a travel agent with Tour Plan International in Richmond. She lives with her husband and daughter in Richmond. Cathy Bennett Neff works in a family business, Dataworld. She has a 5-year-old daughter, Alexandra, and lives in Bethesda, Md. Susan Brooks-Gaspich is a first-grade teacher in Tuckerton, N.J. She has received the Governor's Award for Teacher of the Year at Chelsea Heights School.

Seth Brown attended Reunion with his wife. Seth is director of finance for Fairchild Space and Defense Corporation in Germantown, Md. He has his M.S., M.B.A., and C.P.A. Whew! He also has two children! Deborah Cox Bigdely drove up from North Carolina for the weekend. She was concerned about her family because of the tornadoes in her area that weekend. Susan DuBois Burnette is working as a nursery school teacher in Richmond. She and Don have three children.

Lucy Eppes Swanson receives the award for coming the farthest for Reunion Weekend. Lucy was on the East Coast from Hawaii. She has a son, Brandon, whom she brought with her. Her husband will probably be stationed in Hawaii another three years. We're glad you could make it, Lucy!

Vicki Fotopoulos is living in Bethesda, Md. She is a national service manager for AT&T and is active in the Junior League of Washington. She took two trips to the Bahamas in 1991 and went to Greece in 1992.

Leslie Goodwyn Anestey is vice president of sales and marketing for Banana Boat in Virginia Beach. She and Mark have an 18-month-old daughter, Elizabeth.

Joanna Markussen is a chemical engineer in air pollution control process research for the U.S. Department of Energy at Pittsburgh Energy Technology Center. She has earned her M.S. and her Ph.D. from Carnegie Mellon University. She sings in the BACH Choir and jogs and plays softball. Glad you made it, Joanna! Kathy Mayer Rugh is at home with Haley and Corbin. She brought pictures of her two adorable daughters in dresses she had smocked. She plans to begin her own business, making custom children's clothing and flags.

Carol Mills is living in Alexandria and is an elementary music specialist for Prince William County schools. Cindy Reeves Mohr is living near Harrisonburg. She is at home with son William and working part time as a math tutor at JMU for the Athletic Department. Bobbi Rollins Shammas is a copy editor for Willman-Bell in Richmond. Demetria Smith Laird brought Christopher, Sarah and her husband along for the weekend. She is currently home with the children.

Malinda Smith Willis has two children, Carl and Gordon. She lives in Falmouth. Tina Trotta Katrenak attended with her husband, coming all the way from Woodstock, Conn. She has her own band and is a certified pistol instructor, teaching women firearm safety and personal protection techniques. She has two children, Cagney and Arianne. Eileen Wiles Sateriale lives in Bowie, Md., with Ken and their daughters, Maura and Carla. Ken is a procurement analyst at NASA in Washington, D.C., and she works part time at her daughters' school.

Tia Kite Cadow wrote to say she has started a small business designing and making specialty clothing for children. She also helps a friend with catering, and cares for Megan and Kelsey, her two daughters. At Vickie Nichols' wedding in October 1992, she saw Darlene Tanner Martin, Debbie Akers Berry, Miriam Decker Chapman '77, Dottie Traweek Large '80 and Linda Brown Meador. Vickie married Jay Sherertz and lives in Roanoke, where she works for Blue Cross/Blue Shield. Darlene is still teaching kindergarten in Richmond.

Lori Skeen Embrey '77 is a buyer for Leggett and is living in Ashland, Va. She has a daughter, Kathryn. Lark Dunwoody English '77 lives in Fredericksburg and has two children, Cliff and Courtney. Susan Scott Estes '77 works at Dahlgren Naval Base and lives in Fredericksburg with her two children, Vince and Kelly. Adrienne Principe Carson '77 lives in Virginia Beach with her two kids, Chelsea and Nicole. Kathy King Wirtala now has three children, Sara, Timmy and Amy.

Susan Tart Telesco is living in Norwalk, Conn., since she married David in 1980. They have three children, Shanna, 8, Melissa, 6, and Kyle, 5. Susan is working as an assistant district manager for Avon. She is also the public relations coordinator for her children's shool. David has his own business, New England Glass Enclosures. Susan stays in touch with Janet Schultz McKenna and Ann Conway Wenger. Abigail Omans Lutz is at home in Springfield with her three children. She is active in Girl Scouts, volunteer work at school, gardening and needlework.

Claudia Nicholson is curator of the Robinson State Museum for the South Dakota State Historical Society. She and her husband have a 3-year-old daughter. Kim Oberg is a manager, computer specialist for the U.S. Treasury Department.

Meredith Schade is a physician in Montclair, N.J. She and her husband, David Fitzgerald, have three children. Frances Samsky Buyers is at home in Barlett, Tenn., with her two children. April Ticknor Davis is at home taking care of her two boys. Margaret Tillery Bell is at home with her two children and working part time as a church organist and piano teacher in Fredericksburg.

Ranelle Weeks Flurie is director/owner/teacher at Ballet and All That Jazz. She has two children and lives in Hagerstown, Md. James McCloud is an earth science teacher at North Stafford High School and has three children. Mary Jo Cordle Stallings works as a loan documentation specialist for Dominion Bank in Richmond and has two children. Dorothy Council Rice is the owner of a retail/consignment store in Fredericksburg and has four children.

Judy Hairfield Beasley is a teacher/athletic and drama director for Spotsylvania County schools. She has published several short stories and articles. She is also a dance instructor. Suzanne Gregory Abel is at home with her three children. Nancy Ford Chewing is teaching high-school math in Stafford County and has two sons.

Anita Churney Keeler '79 is working full time. Roy has started his own business, Automated Systems Engineering. Their two children keep them hopping. She visited Fredericksburg last summer and visited with Sue Peters Jones '79 and Evelyn Watts Way '79.

Barbara Di Giacomo Nawrocki '79 had a boy in October 1992, and Shirley Whiteside Donovan had her first child, a boy, in August 1992. Jean Ebner Gilbertson '79 and Mark have a second son, John, born in April. Jean and Mark are back in Springfield now. Amanda Pittman Gordon '79 is still teaching, but she has been moved to first grade. Her son, Ryan, is 10 and playing little league baseball. Blair is 8 and in second grade.

Well, that's all for now. Please let me hear from you, especially if you haven't written in a long time. Your classmates want to hear what you are doing. Also start planning for our 20th reunion now! It's a load of fun!

From Karen Vogen Gayle:

Jeanne Mack Lieberman is currently living in Baltimore, Md., with her husband, Art, and four children, three girls and one boy, ranging in age from 5 years to 5 months. She is a great mommy and may return to her nursing career.

Paula Dunsmore is a fantastic elementary teacher in Charlottesville, Va. She is returning to school to get her degree in counseling. She visited Karen Vogen Gayle in sunny Florida last year. It was a great reunion.

Leslie Rigby Kash is living in Purcellville, Va., with husband Morgan and two sons. She continues in the education field, having been an administrator and teacher.

Debbie Wilson Lennertz is living in Dunn Loring, Va., with husband Tom and her two children. Martha Cross Swafford is living in Glen Allen, Va., while leading a military life with husband Dave and her three children, two girls and one boy.

Thanks to those of you who have written; we appreciate your letters! We'd like to hear from the rest of you, too!

Lynda Richardson is a professional wildlife photographer shooting for magazines and corporate clients around the country and, occasionally, the world. A story she shot with partner/husband Tim Wright appeared in the Jan.-Feb. '93 issue of International Wildlife magazine, "Standing Up for Sitting Ducks." In summer '92 they traveled to El Salvador for three weeks. While they were down there, they shot another story on shrimp-farming in Honduras, which should appear in the fall '93 issue of the same magazine. For over two years, Lynda has written a column called "Photo Tips" for Virginia Wildlife magazine, and has been president of the Virginia Outdoor Writers Association (VOWA), which includes artists, photographers, book authors, and writers for radio and television — related to the outdoors. Anyone interested in the organization can call her at (804) 272-0965.

Katie Kulp Jones and husband Dennis live in Roanoke with their three daughters, Bethany, 9, Elizabeth, 7, and Meredith, 3. Katie worked at an art gallery until Meredith was born; now she's home full time and loving every minute of it! She does some catering and cake decorating, and the whole family is very involved with the Brethren Church. Katie mentioned that she sees Ellen Stanley and Annie Dufault Anderson whenever they're in Roanoke. Annie's husband is one of Katie's best friends from childhood. Annie and Billy live in Sterling, Va., with their two sons.

In May, I had lunch with Val Grimes Richbourg; we had not seen each other since her wedding 12 years ago, so we had a lot of catching up to do. After they got married, Val and Tom, who was an Army officer at the time, moved to El Paso, Texas, for a couple of years, then to West Point, N.Y. Their son, Chris, now 8, was born while they were stationed at West Point. Tom got out of the Army in 1986, and they moved to Woodbridge, Va., where they've lived since then. Tom works for Martin Marietta, and Val is a full-time mom. Val keeps in touch with Tammy Reid Cochran, who lives in Dayton, Ohio, with her husband, Dennis, and their two children, Kyle and Katie. Tammy still dabbles in pewtersmithing.

Take a few minutes right now — before you set this issue aside and forget about it — and send us a quick note about what you've been up to! For those of you in the D.C. area, I hope to see you at some of the upcoming D.C.-Metro Chapter alumni events. Call me for more information!

From Elizabeth:

Since the last column, I was pleasantly surprised with a letter from Susan Rogalski Piper. She lives in Weymouth, Maine, with husband Christopher and son William. Before she became a full-time mom, Susan worked at the U.S. Department of Labor in Boston as a workers' compensation claims examiner. Thanks for the note, and keep in touch!

Talked to Virginia Deane. She married Scott Bushman on July 31 in Fredericksburg. Several former Marshall third-floor residents gave him our wink of approval at the 10-year-reunion. Suitemates Ginger Wagner and Margaret "Tad" Gillie Stanley were two of her attendants.

Tad dropped me a line at Christmas to say that she, husband Vaughan and son Thomas moved to Buena Vista, Va., in December. Vaughan accepted a position with Washington and Lee University.

Baby news: Margaret "Peggy" Frahm Smith is expecting number two in September.

Terry Jacoby Goodman and I talked in April. She and husband Erin were eagerly expecting the birth of their daughter, Emma, by the end of May. Terry has been living in New York City and working on her master's degree at NYU in clinical social work.

Another baby was born on April 26, 1993, to Elizabeth Mac Lennan Troll and husband Tom. Christopher Thomas weighed in at 8 pounds, 7 ounces. Liz is living in Baltimore and working for Barre National as a compliance auditor.

Liz said that while she was walking through a Baltimore shopping mall she ran into Elizabeth "Betsy" Dake. You may remember Betsy's beautiful singing voice from the long-ago days when we gathered at the "C" Shop in ACL Hall. Now Betsy works dinner theaters in Maryland and also works at the medical library at Johns Hopkins. In her spare time, she travels around the country doing musicals.

As for me, in the spring I chaired a fundraiser for my daughter's nursery school and managed to raise over $12,000 for the school's scholarship fund. During the summer I keep busy with dance and swim lessons, gardening and road trips to Grandma's. I wish there was a way I could get paid for all the running around I do!

Keep the letters and calls coming. I really enjoy hearing from everyone.

From Victoria:

Class of 1983

Bob and I have moved our family a big three miles away to a larger home. Amanda is now 3 and Robert, 1. The level of plastic items has grown, and the pets continue to accumulate. I'm still managing the large animal intensive care facility at NIH in Bethesda. Bob, also at NIH, is working hard in his laboratory, but we took time off for a trip to Jackson Hole, Wyo., last fall and again to Hilton Head, N.C., for a visit with family and for relaxation. Please note the address above as my new one, and send me any news. I've had just a few pieces of correspondence from some of you whom I haven't heard from since 1982. It was really a thrill to get that mail. Others I wanted to get to myself — I lost the printout from the Alumni Office in the move, and if I didn't get you this time I will next. Please write me if you get a chance.

Barbara Wilson Reese and husband Frank have surprised me with a detailed letter. They've been married since graduation, with no children but an array of dogs who are like their children; some are permanent residents, some they "foster parent." Barbara and Frank live in Church Road, Va., in a large old house on a lake. Both commute to Richmond to work. Barbara works for the Virginia Department of Transportation, managing a $1.8 billion budget. Frank still works for Philip Morris.

David "Hawk" Hawkins sent me a birthday card from Converse, Texas. As of April, Hawk was job searching the airlines while continuing Air Force service which has found him in Boise, Idaho, and Williamsburg, Va. He had planned to be in Colorado and Florida as well.

Paula Garten and Dave were expecting their first child. Paula is still working for the Washington Annenberg Center. Dave is still practicing law in the Arlington area.

Lucy Williams McElroy is still working hard running her physical therapy practice and has recently hired a secretary and a bookkeeper to help her.

Erin Devine reports that she is still well and enjoys being the mother of two. Husband Phil Keating is still practicing law in the Washington, D.C., area. Erin has also been very involved in helping the local schools. Children Kathleen, 5, and Patrick, 3, are doing well. Erin has talked with classmates Mike Bennett and Marty DeSilva recently. Mike is still working in New York (Manhattan area) as an investment banker for the Sumi Tomo firm. Marty is working in Washington, D.C., as an administrative assistant in the Georgetown University Business School. Erin also reports that classmate Beth Doyle and husband Booty have moved to Lynchburg. Booty works for Reed First Security and Beth kept her job working for the Annenburg School of Communications by working from her home and using the fax. Beth and Booty have two children, Chucky, 1, and Bobby, 3.

From Caroline:

Elleanore Moll Daub wrote a note recently. She was very sorry to have missed our reunion last year. Since graduate school, she's been living in Richmond and working for the Virginia Water Control Board as an environmental program planner. She also loves being mommy to her daughter, Jesse, who was born in July 1991. Elleanore wrote news of Betsy Morris Caskie, who lives in Richmond and is enjoying motherhood.

Carlyn Crull Yard has two children and works as an emergency room nurse in Atlantic City, N.J. Jeanne Sykes Marsh has gone back to school in the Atlanta area. She says she likes it much better the second time around. Lynn Fochtman Carr is enjoying small-town life in Hamilton, Va. In addition to mothering three of her own children, she provides child care in her home.

My days are delightfully filled with home schooling our 6-year-old twin daughters, gardening, swimming at the pool (year round!) and directing a literacy/conversational English program at our local church.

I know everyone had a great time at our 10th Reunion; it was almost as if we picked up where we left off in 1983. We had alumni from California, N.Y., N.J., N.H., N.C. — but if you didn't make this one, there's always our 15th. It was great to catch up with old friends and see everyone's progeny, and believe me, there were plenty. We all had fun at our class party in Russell. Twelve of the 21 gals living in Framar senior year showed up, and a photo was snapped to commemorate the event.

Mabel Royal came up from N.C. to say she's almost completed her Ph.D. in immunology at UNC. Gail Vermilyea is living in D.C. and working for the government. Jane Feeney (yes, Jane) is a physician recruiter and consultant in N.H. Harolyn Berry Bland works for AT&T. Elaine White Smetts is at MWC completing her teaching certificate. Wendy Burnette Dickinson, husband John and Hillary, now 1, have moved to Richmond. Estie Corey Thomas was recently promoted in her job at the Chesapeake Bay Foundation.

Sharon Robertson married Brian Williamson in March '93, and they now reside in Williamsburg. Muffin Williamson Wilson was supposed to be in her wedding, but gave birth to a baby boy three days after Sharon's wedding instead. Suzy Leavitt lives and works in the heart of N.Y.C. and was in the World Trade Center the day it was bombed. Meg Bell Synan is working on her legal assistant certificate and works part time in her husband's law office. Maren Bogen Reiner has 2-year-old twin boys, Andrew and Robert, in addition to son Matthew, 5.

Dannehl Bounds Strautz now has her M.Ed. in counseling and is teaching at Arcadia High School in Accomack County. Pamela Bowden Dahlhauser had her first child in December 1992. Heidi Brickell Ullrich is living in Virginia Beach and is full-time mommy to Rachel, 5, and Jacob, 2. Susan Bridges Loberger received her M.S. in international studies from Troy State University and is a geographic information systems analyst for Canal Forest Resources.

Amy Burton Hobeck keeps busy with three children and home schools the oldest. Mary Butler Turner also keeps busy with three children, the youngest born February 1993. Jeffrey Carter is an archivist with the National Archives and Records Administration. Jackie Conciatore is a writer/editor with American University. Debbie Fontaine Martin lives in Texas and is mom to Kevin, 3, and Sarah, 2.

Kitty Hahn Campanella is on staff at Morristown Memorial Hospital, where she is Protestant chaplain. Dave Hardin is instructor of geography at Longwood College. Scott Harris is an instructor of Civil War history at Northern Virginia Community College, in addition to being curator for Manassas Museum. His son, Jeff, is 2. Karen Gallahan Higgs is a French/Spanish teacher with Stafford County. Diane Hitt Frazier appeared in Who's Who of American Teachers. She is the full-time mom to two boys, Michael and Matthew. Becky Hobbs Shermer is pursuing her M.S. in nursing at MCV and will become an OB-GYN nurse practitioner in 1994.

Betty Isaacs will retire next year after 10 years at the Naval Space Command and plans to move to Somerset, Ky., with her husband. Mollie Joynes Baker is currently home schooling the eldest two of her five children and hopes to home school the rest. Elden Le Gaux and wife Perry Roberts are busy with their 1-year-old twins, Jordan and Kelsey. Sheila Keenan Rubin will be completing her M.S. in physical therapy this year. Lynn Kenneally is currently a self-employed attorney in New Jersey.

Andrea Kocolis Hornung will complete her M.S. in urban and environmental planning from U.Va. in 1994. Susan Kushmeider is a senior speech pathologist and is working on her M.A. in applied behavioral science at Johns Hopkins. Emily Larkins received her M.S. in educational technology from Gallaudet in May 1993. LeeAnn Mallott Pritchard works for the FBI in information management. Robin Maurice Wedewer and husband Harry are living in Jacksonville with their 2-year-old son, Benjamin. Farah Maynor Marks is the director of development services at Randolph-Macon Woman's College.

Anne Means Carlson is full-time mommy to son Quentin, 2. Christiane Miller is a housing coordinator for the Rappahannock Area Community Services Board. Theresa Min Lee is mom to Anthony, 1. Stacey Nickerson Dusek is pursuing her doctor of ministry in urban ministry and is pastor of Memorial United Methodist Church. Her first child, Matthew, was born in August 1992.

Lisa O'Brien Baxter is assistant county administrator for King George County. Her daughter, Alexandra, is 2. Patsy O'Connell McCoy's second child, Jack, is 8 months. Terri Patty Crumpler is a teacher with Gates County Schools in North Carolina. Regina Perry Gunning received her R.N. from ODU in 1991. Dave Peterson will finish off his orthopedic surgery residency at MCV and then he, wife Audrey and their two daughters are going to Orlando in 1994 to finish his Navy obligation.

Helen Preston is an account executive with Commerce Bank in Virginia Beach. Billy Pugh was married in 1991. His wife, Allison, is a district sales manager for Gap Kids. Billy is district sales director for Athlete's Foot. Monica Rastallis and husband Mark Cashin had their first child in January 1993. Cindy Rebein Myers is a computer scientist with Cardirack Division, Naval Surface Warfare Center. She has two children, David, 6, and Jacklyn, 3. Anne Rivello Darron is full-time mommy to two boys, Matthew and Robert. Lillian Sempeles Funk and her husband had a son, Michael, now almost 8 months.

Nan Stanford McCarry is at home with her 2-year-old, William. Before having children, she and Caleb lived in Guatemala, when Caleb was transferred. Susan Steffe Krudop is an administrative assistant in a medical practice in Norfolk. Carter Still is assistant director of development at Monticello. Judy Sweetman Borek is a management analyst for the U.S. Information Agency and has a baby son, Andrew. Mary Lou Taylor DeHart is an elementary school teacher for Stafford County and has a son, Taylor, born in October 1992.

Donna Thompson Whitlock is a stay-at-home mom to her three children, Amanda, 6, Austin, 3, and Amy, 2. John Thrall is stationed in San Diego, where he has been a military policeman. He has also been a sonarman for 10 years. His wife, Maria Theresa, is an at-home mom to their son, Gregory, 3. Desiree Velez has filmed two movies, "That Night," and "Super Mario Brothers."

Marti Viau Fleger had her first child in December 1992. Martha Weber Jaffe is a free-lance editor for Westat, Inc. Terry Wybersky Williams and husband Brian are parents of Samantha, 3, and Melissa, 8 months. Kathy Walters Along is an ESL instructor at Mercer College in N.J.

Marine Capt. Daniel P. Kelly was recently deployed with 24th Marine Expeditionary Unit, Camp Lejeune, N.C., to the Persian Gulf for six months as part of the U.S.S. Wasp Amphibious Ready Group, which is comprised of four ships and a 2,100-man Marine Expeditionary Unit. The group will participate in various exercises while deployed, and be ready to respond on short notice to crises in distant lands.

Well, that's it from me. Jackie Lane Rice and I will share class agent responsibilities, so keep those cards and letters coming to either of us.

I received a great letter from Carolyn Copland Creekmur. She and her husband, Will, have a 2-year-old son, Ruffin. Carolyn's husband is a graduate student, and she is working as an instructor at a Montessori preschool in Glendale, Ariz. Her former roommate, Jacqueline "Jacqui" Curtin Wetzel, married Bob, a Navy man and former POW of the Gulf War. They have a son, Timothy, and are living in Mississippi.

Sue Schmitt Crumblish married her longtime sweetheart, Mark. At the time Carolyn wrote, Sue and Mark had one son and another baby on the way.

I also received a wonderful letter from Anne Marie Tisler Vencill, who received her Ph.D. in entomology from Virginia Tech in 1991. She and her husband, Dr. William Vencill, are currently on the faculty at the University of Georgia. She also writes that her brother, Andrew Tisler '87 and his wife, Debbie Dell '87, are living in Aiken, S.C., with their little girl, Cathie. They are expecting their second child in July.

Please take a few minutes to write or call with news of yourself or other alumni.

Thanks to all who came out to our five-year reunion! It was great to see everyone and catch up on all that has happened since we parted ways. Well, here is a little bit of what's been going on. Forgive me if I forget key facts like names and dates, but I'm writing this from memory. I'm sure you'll let me know if I screw up.

Cheryl Ellyson Shaninian and her husband, Billy, are expecting their first child in September. I predict it's going to be a boy. Good luck, and let us know how things turn out! Diane Cardwell just had a beautiful baby girl, Heather, in March. Liz Agro was recently married and is living in New York. She and her husband met as camp counselors at Hofstra University on Long Island. Arlene Fierstien and her husband, John, had a daughter, Abby, two years ago. She is an occupational therapist at a nursing home and he is a caterer.

Christine Delano is working as a food inspector in Northern Virginia, so if you want to know where to eat and where not to eat, she can let you know. She and Chris Myers '89 will be married soon, too. Holli and Yuri Vaughan are living in Arlington. Holli is working in pharmaceuticals, and Yuri works for the Defense Mapping Agency. Faye Chilton and her husband, Roger, just moved from the state of Washington to Virginia. Both are doing well. Temple Dillon Horsley is working for Nation's Bank in North Carolina. Jay

Bradshaw is flying planes privately and getting a lot of traveling in at the same time. Adam Smith is a self-employed executive recruiter and is living in Fairfax.

Jennifer Menson is living in Wilmington, Del., and is very happy that WDRE 103.9, my personal favorite radio station from Long Island, has just moved to Philadelphia. I also ran into Amy Murphy, who is living in Atlanta, Amy Bachman, who is living in Philadelphia, Karen Downey, who is living in Fairfax, and Bev Iden, who is living in Aldie, Va.

Amy Boyd Clodius has two great kids, Brandon and Carrie Anne, and is living in Fredericksburg with her husband, Rod. Lisa Barber is working in the restaurant management field and residing in Northern Virginia. Debbie Reep is working as a therapist for emotionally disturbed children and working on her master's degree in social work.

Also in the news, congratulations to Sandra Larranage Bowe and her husband, Russell, on the birth of their daughter, Lillian "Lily" Rebekah, on July 6, 1992! We also have a new author in our midst, Mary Frances Schottler White '89, who just wrote Window Seat Politics, a book about the arranged marriage of Governor Jayson Adams to Kathleen Moore. It was published by Lucky Books of Winchester, Va. Just ask your local bookstore for a copy. Congrats to Mary Frances! And finally, congratulations to Eileen Brown and Abas Adenan '85. They were married on May 29, 1993.

From Susan:

It's hard to believe that it's time to write the MWC Today class notes again! Time sure flies when you work and can't sleep late! Since I have started writing this column, I have received many letters and seen many of you fellow '91 classmates out and about. I try to include everyone, but if I forget, please drop me a line and let me know what's new in your life.

I am always down in Old Town Alexandria, and recently I ran into Brian Kilkinney and Bernie, fellow freshman year Westmorelanders. Brian is working at the Seaport Inn in Old Town, and Bernie is his usual partying self. Bullfeathers is the place to be to see tons of Mary Wash graduates; I also saw Molly Calfee '92 down there.

Speaking of the night life, The Rabble Rousers, our own rock band, is still drawing huge crowds at Zaxx in Springfield. Todd Stayin, Jeff Miers and James Benvenuto are still going strong, and maybe if we ask them nicely, they would play a couple of songs for the class at our five-year reunion (it's not that far away, you know)! Mary Ann McDonald is living in Annandale and has a new sales representative job. She and her Maryland man are doing very well!

Tasha Maurer and Susan Rao live in Alexandria. Tasha is working as a schoolteacher and loves it. They were in Houlihan's on St. Patrick's Day, and it was fun to see familiar faces. Dave Sanders lives with Chris Bowers in Vienna. Working in Northern Virginia this summer, Nicole Shaffer is interning for her physical therapy degree.

Matt Boehmer and Lynne Yankosky are now the Boehmers, officially! They were married in January, and in March moved to Monterey, Calif., and are having the best time.

Gunner Nelson and James Whalen live in Oakton, and we all got together recently for a big cookout. Karen Troiano is working for JWP Office and Computer Equipment in D.C., and her buddy, Stephanie Weekes, is teaching elementary school in Stafford County. Travis Jones and Andrea Ashford are engaged.

Mark Rashleigh is now living in Fredericksburg. His old roomie, Colin Sullivan, lives the high life in New York City, where he is a track coach, but still finds time to pursue his M.B.A. at Iona College.

Wedding bells are also ringing soon for Shannon Brown and Marty McConagha '92; Michelle Chamulak and Sean Jepson; Ilene Goldstein '90 and Brian O'Donnell; and Shannon Eadie and Frank Niemeyer. Best of luck to all of you!

Alabama is Dia Quillen's new home, where she is in graduate school. The wildest house in Vienna has Mark Mesterhazy, Ben Hurley, Jim Harman, Dave Henrickson and Chris Bennett '89 all living in it.

Stephanie Myers is working in Tyson's Corner at BDM and lives with Hope Glass '93 and Cheryl Smith '90. As for me, I am still with Marshall's, and over the summer worked as the district trainer, traveling to stores in the Northern Virginia area. I spent an exciting and wild summer in Dewey Beach, Del., with tons of Mary Wash graduates including Mike Michalowicz '90, Cheryl Smith, Karen Troiano and Stephanie Myers. We all rented a beach house and tried to relive the up-all-night, sleep-all-day carefree attitude that we had in college. We had a blast and met lots of new people.

Please write and tell me any exciting news that is happening to you. My number is (703)425-6127; just give me a call.

He is working for the Pentagon Credit Union. Vicki Southard is working in D.C. for the government and doing great. Keith Veltri, how is pharmacy school?

Christine Harrison married Chris Martin in October 1992. She is a development coordinator at Randolph-Macon Academy in Front Royal. Melody Schroeder was married in June 1992. Ruth Pollack was married in December 1992. Congratulations to Shannon Brown '91 and Marty McConagha, who are planning a Jan. 1, 1994 wedding.

From Mike:

Well, it's hard to believe, but it's been more than a year since we walked for graduation. The year has held a lot of change for all of us, and one thing is universal...the vacation is over, and reality has set in. Many of us now have full-time jobs and are longing for the ease of an MWC day, even with an exam or two. I know I definitely miss my weekends starting on Wednesdays. Just a couple of hints before I begin. First, a 29-cent stamp will bring a letter into N.H. I know it seems out of the country, but it isn't. Besides, a long distance call costs less to N.H. than a long distance call within Virginia.

It was weird to be back at school to watch a graduation this time, but it was good to see so many friends again. The big news was the graduation of several of our classmates who were unable to walk with us. Although you may technically be in the Class of 1993, you will always be part of the Class of 1992. Congratulations to Jenny Levering, Katie Levering, Matt Abel, Kaela Coughlin, Erik Mink, Tim Brice, Elaina Debarbadillo and anyone else whom I may have missed.

It seems that the main theme among our classmates is not jobs but relationships. It looks like it might be shorter to list those who are still single. (I'll probably be on the list forever, along with Mike Zerull.) In all seriousness, congratulations to the following: John Lilienthal, who will be marrying his longtime sweetheart, Veronique, in October 1993 (John is at Tetro Tech in Springfield); Alex Aveta and Emilie Whitehead, who will exchange vows in the fall of 1994 (Alex is a student loan servicer for Sally Mae, and Emilie is a cytogenetic technician); Amy Austin, who will marry Tony Combs '93 on August 15, 1993; Margaret Hyland, who is honeymooning in Ireland; Susan Rankin and Todd Combs, who are planning an Oct. 2, 1993 wedding; Vanessa Martin, who has set the date for April 9, 1994; Jennifer Stallings, who is married and is living in California; Jeff Woo; Heather Saunders; and Melissa Yellen, who is marrying her longtime boyfriend, Larry, on August 8, 1993. I wish you all the best.

As for the job scene, we have been a very busy class. Todd Schill is working in Fredericksburg as a real estate appraiser for Battlefield Real Estate. William "Payne" Marks is "paying the damn bills" near Richmond, and Robert Todd is working in Northern Virginia. Marc Tate is a "repo man."

Michelle Brown is working for MCI down in South Carolina, and Mike Mulherin is managing a catering service in Northern Virginia. Eric Stephan is a computer programmer in Annandale, and Fred Dolan is at the Newport News office of the Virginia Employment Commission.

Kurt Rupprecht and Michael Furman are rooming together in Fairfax. Kurt is at Potomac Electric, and Mike is working for the Potomac News. Dave Canasty is working for the U.S. Treasury, and Justin Piatt is working in the U.S. Judiciary Federal Courts system while getting his master's, specializing in taxation. He plans to go to law school in the fall of 1994. Jolene Carter is working for Princess Cruises.

Kristin Hastings is busy with the youth ministry at her church and with her work at Catholic Charities. Kim Selby and Linda Kelly are both busy as accountants and just took the CPA exam, as did Vanessa Martin, who is still with the banking industry in Richmond along with Malia Hamilton and Dawn Stone. Also in Richmond is Andrea Feeback, while Drew Gallagher, Pam Memmott and Liam Cleaver are still in Fredericksburg.

Liam just finished his job as an admissions counselor at MWC and is now checking out graduate schools. Hilary Holmes is still in Alexandria as an accountant for the government, and Stacey Gallardy may be the smartest of us all, as she is traveling around the country checking out graduate schools. Right now, Florida is her home, and she'll be traveling up the coast during the summer.

Susan Myers has proved that she can coach as well as she played, because her girls' basketball team went 14-6. Now she's trying to work that same magic with her boys' tennis team. Do I hear a state championship? She's doing just as well in the math classroom in Bridgewater, Va. Also teaching are Jen Tompkins, Kerri Mullen, Margaret Williams and Vikki Lenhart.

Those who have chosen to continue their education include Kate Stanford, who is at Mercer Law School in Georgia, Kim Quillen, who will graduate from American University this summer, Kaela Coughlin, who has a full ride to grad school out West, and Beatrice Biso, who just finished one year of law school at Western New England College.

As for myself, I'm just as busy as ever. I am working full time at Enterprise Rent-A-Car in Nashua, N.H., doing a lot of marketing and customer service. I work about 60 hours a week and then finish out the weekend at the video store. It makes for a long week, but I am saving a lot of money, so hopefully, I will be able to move back to Virginia shortly. I'll always have time if anyone wants to visit N.H. I'd be happy to have you, and there's always plenty of room. It was good to see everyone at graduation, and thanks for all the letters and info. Y'all take care now.
